Flood Menace Grows as Rain Continues

PITTSBURGH, OHIO VALLEY TOWNS PERILED

County Streams Run Bankfull, Water at Charles Mill Rises Foot an Hour.

HIGHWAYS WASHING OUT

Pittsburgh Has Worst December Flood In Century; Ohio Families Evacuated.

Gauges were carefully watched and flood gates accordingly manipulated at the Charles Mill dam today as .78 inches of rainfall in the past 24 hours sent the water level behind the dam to 14.1 feet, as other waterways of the county and state alike were at flood stage or near it.

The water level at the dam was rising this morning at a rate of 1.1 feet per hour, according to Ellsworth Secrest, engineer, with the peak due to be reached about 72 hours after the rain subsides. Last April's all time high of 18.1 feet may be reached by that time, Secrest said.

Today's weather forecast was for colder weather but with rain continuing.

Ditches and streams of Richland county were running bank full with some damage being reported in lower valleys of the Rocky Fork creek. Most serious of the damages in the county, however, were roads broken through by the thaw, according to Howard Sword, county engineer. Roads having a "Telford base" of large and small stones were roughest as the smaller stones disintegrated and the larger ones worked to the surface, while other roads without such a base were, in some cases, close to the "miring" stage, Sword said.

Richland county has had a 2.39 inch rainfall since Christmas.

Meanwhile in various other sections of the state, rivers and creeks overflowed their banks to inundate highways and streets. Flood warnings were issued in the Liverpool-Wellsville and Youngstown districts.

The Ohio river neared a 35-foot flood stage in the upper Ohio valley, and the worst December flood in the past cen-

ACCORD SEEN

DeGaulle Trip To U. S. Hints Unity Among French.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Speculation over a possible speedy rapprochement between North African French and fighting French actions arose today in the wake of news that Gen. Charles De Gaulle is coming to this country to confer with President Roosevelt.

The president himself disclosed at his press conference yesterday that he expected a visit very soon from De Gaulle, leader of the fighting French who had criticized the emergence of Admiral Jean Darlan as French high commissioner in North Africa.

Darlan, regarded by the De-Gaullist forces as a Vichy collaborationist prior to his capitulation to American troops in the North African invasion, was assassinated Christmas Eve. His successor, Gen, Henri Giraud, already has representatives here.

Germans Fire On English Town From Low Level.

LONDON—(U.P.)—Four persons, including two women and a child, were killed and several others were injured when three Focke-Wulf-190 fighter planes bombed a southwest English coastal town from low level today.

The Germans also swept the town with machine guns and cannon. A block of tenements was shattered and several more victims were believed trapped beneath the debris.

Drinking, Savage Fighting Among Gangsters Revealed to Have Led to Touhy Mob Round-Up

Hoover Says Leaders Hit Gang Member With Pistol Butts.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO—The vicious Touhy-Banghart criminal gang came to its sudden end, with two men shot to death and the other five captured by J. Edgar Hoover's FBI agents, through liquor and savage fighting among themselves, it was disclosed today.

The five captured were held today in federal custody pending a decision by Attorney General Francis Biddle on whether the government will prosecute them or return them to Statesville prison from which they fled in a daring break last Oct. 9.

They are Roger ("Terrible") Touhy, Basil ("The Owl") Banghart, chief trigger-man for the Touhy mob; Edward Darlak, murderer of a Chicago policeman; Matthew Nelson, whose record was 39 robberies when he last was sentenced, and William Stewart, also a robber.

Touhy, Banghart and Darlak were seized before dawn yesterday in an elaborately staged raid led by Hoover himself upon an apartment at 5116 Kenmore avenue.

The capture of Nelson Dec. 16 in Minneapolis was the start of the round-up of the notorious criminals. Three days later Stewart was seized in Chicago.

Those slain in a furious gun battle with FBI agents in another apartment, at 1254 Leland avenue, were James O'Connor, a thief since 15 and twice a jail breaker before his escape with Touhy; and St. Clair McInerney, "The Saint," a robber and habitual criminal.

They were killed at 11:30 p. m. Monday, about five hours before Touhy and his companions were trapped as they slept, by Hoover and between 40 and 50 G-men, many of them brought here for the round-up from other cities.

The story of the part liquor and fighting had in uncovering the whereabouts of the seven gangsters was told part by Hoover and in part by John Horst and his wife, Emma, agents for the Doversun apartment which the

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the FBI, revealed today that drinking and fighting among members of the Touhy gang led to the round-up of the mobsters. Above at left, a closet filled with cans of food and empty champagne bottles in the Chicago apartment occupied by Touhy and his men indicates that the killers and robbers lived high. Touhy is shown in the inset. The picture at right shows police putting the body of one of the two gangsters slain by G-men into a patrol wagon.

HOLDS PARLEY ON GAMBLING 'CHALLENGE'

Mayor Talks To McFarland, Wolff After Kalbfleisch's Enforcement Blast.

JUDGE, CHIEF ABSENT

Locke Reported To Have Said He's 'Tired of Being Made the Goat.'

Quoted as having said he was "tired of being made the goat" Mayor W. J. Locke today held a conference of advisors, purportedly to decide what action would be taken on the challenge laid down yesterday by Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch either to enforce existing gambling laws or call for their repeal.

Today's conference followed a brief interview yesterday with Judge Kalbfleisch shortly after the jurist's challenge made from the bench as he passed sentence in a gambling case.

Among those seen entering the mayor's office when the conference started was Earl McFarland, former mayor. Judge Kalbfleisch had not received an invitation up to 11:30 a. m. Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff was another of the conferees. Police Chief Thomas M. Bell was not present.

Under the laws of the land, according to City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner, the mayor of a city is the chief conservator or enforcer of the city's laws.

Chief Bell and other members of the police department today did not appear unduly perturbed by Judge Kalbfleisch's attack on "spotty" law enforcement.

The jurist's remarks accompanied the sentencing of a slot machine owner and he referred to the recent arrest of a colored man as a numbers seller.

"Surely I am not to believe," the Judge said, "that he (the colored man) runs the numbers games any more than I am to believe that this defendant is the major offender with his machines.

"So long as this spotty type of enforcement continues the general public will be entitled to challenge the honesty and integrity of all of us charged with the responsibility of enforcing the law."

Chief Bell this morning indicated he has received no specific instructions regarding the gambling situation, remarking: "I'll let you know" when asked if any action is to be taken.

Capture Four Large Ammunition Dumps As German Prisoners Begin March Back From Kotelnikovski; North Sector Offensive Expected.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—The Red army cut its way through 30,000 German troops southwest of Stalingrad today, seized a divisional headquarters and rolled on toward the rich prize of Rostov, key to the Caucasus.

Four big ammunition dumps fell to the advancing Russians and large numbers of Axis prisoners began trudging toward the rear lines from Kotelnikovski, captured by the Russians yesterday.

(There were indications that there might be another Russian offensive soon on the northern end of the 1,100-mile battle line. A Berlin dispatch to the Swedish newspaper Nya Dagligt Allenbanda reported that Soviet trucks were streaming across frozen Lake Ladoga, restoring land communication with besieged Leningrad. German artillery was shelling the ice, the dispatch said.)

Tanks led the night assault that defeated the 30,000 Germans southwest of Stalingrad.

By their capture of Kotelnikovski, 90 miles southwest of Stalingrad, they smashed the anchor of the entire German right wing and news was expected at any time that the Russian left wing had swung around in a direct attack over flat plains which offer little possibility of effective defense against tanks, on Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus.

In night fighting in piercing cold, the Russians took village after village.

Tanks, operating by themselves, encircled one batch of 6,000 German troops and killed 1,800, the noon communique said.

In another southwest Stalingrad sector a shivering battalion commander came voluntarily into the Red army lines to surrender. The Russian sector commander invited him to return to his unit and bring back his men. He did so and surrendered about 1,000 men with all their arms and supplies, the noon communique reported.

In the northern factory area of Stalingrad, where the new Russian offensive was assuming proportions almost as important as that to the southwest, the Russians during the night drove forward against desperate German resistance and smashed 82 blockhouses and dugouts, killing 300 troops.

Here among the factories, the Russians yesterday made their biggest gains since Nov. 19. With bayonet and hand grenade, assault troops advanced yard by yard for from 330 to 450 yards in an area

85 APPROVED FOR GRADUATION

Mid-Year Class at High School To Be One of Smallest In Recent Years.

One of the smallest mid-winter classes at Senior high school in recent years was approved last night by the Mansfield board of education for graduation Jan. 22.

The board placed tentative approval on the graduation of 85 seniors, including 51 girls and 34 boys. Last January 96 pupils were graduated.

The board authorized Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller to withhold the diploma of any of the class members who fail to meet the requirements by commencement date.

Supt. Miller said he was negotiating for a commencement speaker and details of the program would be announced later.

Immediately upon graduation, boys in the class who are past 18 will become eligible for induction into the armed forces if they meet physical requirements.

Seniors approved for graduation next month are:

Five Youths Confess Nine Burglaries, 3 Car Thefts

Nine Mansfield burglaries committed in recent months and three auto thefts here and in Wyandot county have been solved by confessions of five youths arrested by Mansfield police and Upper Sandusky authorities within the last 48 hours.

The youths, ranging in age from 13 to 17 years, are awaiting action by Judge Stuart H. Cramer in the juvenile division of probate court.

Patrolmen George Yoakam and Russell Miles yesterday captured three of the boys after they had escaped Monday night from the Wyandot county sheriff who had arrested their two companions in Upper Sandusky. The latter two were returned to Mansfield last night.

The quintet admitted the theft Monday evening of an auto belonging to Paul Carbetta, 233 North Mulberry street, Mansfield boxer. When challenged by the Wyandot sheriff three of the boys fled, stealing an auto in Upper Sandusky and another in Williamstown. All cars have been recovered.

Identification Officers Ernest Fuller and Clare Kyler obtained the confessions after one youth became nervous last night when Chet Nail, pinball machine distributor, visited the police station to recover a machine taken in a recent grocery store robbery.

The youth was being fingerprinted at the time and broke down when Kyler told Nail the boy's fingerprints had been obtained from it. The others followed suit.

Altogether, police say, the youths confessed two burglaries of the Lautsbaugh drugstore, a raid on the Weber brewery which proved sickening, the Wolfe grocery store on Cline avenue, the Calvert laundry, the Evergreen cafeteria where coffee and cash were taken, the Pastime poolroom, an attempted burglary of the Marmus confectionery which was foiled by Patrolmen Carl Beard and John Grohol, and looting of the auto of John Seeley, North Walnut street, of a camera, light meter and typewriter Monday night at the time they took the Carbetta car.

GET NO HOLIDAY

CONTINUE HUNT

Sheriff In Columbus Seeking Youthful Jail-Breaker.

Tracing down every available clue in an effort to apprehend Richard Henry Wymer, 19, who escaped Saturday morning from Richland county jail, Sheriff Frank Robinson and Deputy Joe Hetler were in Columbus today to contact former associates of the youth there.

Confident that their net spread will eventually ensnare the fugitive, officers were anxious today to complete details of a priority order which would insure re-enforcement of the jail bars which were snapped to make the hole for escape.

Although county commissioners have not yet been asked to make any appropriation for the repairs and re-enforcements, pending information as to the cost and availability of materials, they indicated that their cooperation would be forthcoming when such a request was made.

U. S. Troops Best Behaved In History, OWI Survey Declares

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON- In a counter-attack against rising prohibition sentiment the office of war information reported today that Uncle Sam's troops drink conservatively and the American army is "the best behaved in history."

"The American soldier needs neither curtain lecture nor apology," OWI said. "He behaves well, he trains well, and in the far-flung places of the earth he is fighting well.

"There is vastly less drinking among soldiers in this war than in the last war."

In a 15-page report, the OWI summarized the findings of a 12,000-mile, coast-to-coast survey of drinking conditions in and around army camps, reaching three general and explicit conclusions:

"1. There is not excessive drinking among troops, and drinking does not constitute a serious problem.

"2. The sale of 3.2 beer in the post exchanges in training camps is a positive factor in army sobriety.

"3. No American army in all history has been so orderly."

The OWI, recognizing that it is still "legal" to take a drink in the United States, declared that "there is drinking in the army;

APPROVES BOOST IN MILK PRICE

OPA Authorizes Penny a Quart Hike In Richland, Other Counties Nearby.

Increase in milk prices in the Mansfield area was seen probable today after the OPA authorized dairymen to boost the price one cent a quart and a half cent a pint over the March price ceiling.

The maximum increases would bring the price of milk in Mansfield to 14 cents a quart and seven and a half cents a pint. Under the OPA adjustment, however, retailers may charge as much as nine cents a pint if the increase amounts to no more than a half cent.

While dairymen in Mansfield said they have made no move to raise prices, most of them said higher prices are on the way because of the competition from dealers in Cleveland and other large cities in northern Ohio.

OPA authorized the price increase effective Jan. 1 in 44 northern Ohio counties, including Richland, and four counties in West Virginia.

Other nearby counties in which increases were authorized included Ashland, Crawford, Holmes, and Huron.

OPA officials said the adjustment was ordered after requests were received from most of the counties in the northern half of the state.

In Cuyahoga county (Cleveland) and Summit county (Akron) the new retail prices will be 15 cents a quart and nine cents a pint.

Schools Get Out Of Debt But Have To Borrow Again

Mansfield schools have paid off their operating indebtedness, but they must go right back into debt again after Jan. 1 to pay teachers and employes, John H. Eisaman, clerk of the board of education, told the board last night.

Eisaman said he had paid the $50,000 the board owed Mansfield banks, giving the board a clean slate at the end of the year.

There is no money available, however, to meet the Jan. 1 payroll and it will be necessary to borrow another $50,000 against a future allocation of state school foundation funds, he added.

Because of the clouded financial picture, the board withheld action on requests for pay increases for engineers, firemen,

200 AT SESSION

Merchants Hear Dimout and Blackout Explanation.

Nearly 200 Mansfield merchants attended a meeting in the Majestic theater last night when Chief Air Warden Glenn W. Marriott and others explained dimout and blackout regulations which will be enforced in event of air raids or simulated attacks on the city from the air.

Paul Snyder, representing R. D. Iden, chairman of the Civilian Defense council blackout committee, talked on the darkening of store windows and other features. W. E. Bradford, zone leader for the Third ward, explained how air wardens will operate under dimout and blackout conditions. Al Harman, assistant chief warden, complimented Ray Ward and other wardens, especially those serving the Main street district, for their effort in arranging the instruction session.

Similar meetings are being planned to prepare for district and state-wide dimouts and blackouts to be called by the Ohio Defense council before April 1.

IT'S LAST DAY

18-Year-Olds Must Be Registered By Tomorrow Night.

Youths who have passed their 18th birthday since June 30 have only one more day to register for selective service, draft boards of the county warned today as a total of registration of only slightly over 200 was reported. Tomorrow at 5 p. m. is the deadline.

Boys in Mansfield and Madison township must register at their selective service board while boys in the county area, under board 3's jurisdiction, may register either at the board or at various places designated throughout the county.

HARASSING: British Patrols Jab Fleeing Foe West of Sirte

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—United States troops were reported in a Reuters dispatch today to have advanced to within 40 miles of Gabes, strategic Tunisian port which lies approximately midway between Axis-held Tripoli and Tunis.

(By United Press)

CAIRO—British Eighth army patrols have broken across the Wadi Bei El Chebir, first of the remaining three possible lines of defense on the Libyan coast, and are slashing into straggling Afrika Korps transport, a communique of the Middle Eastern command said today.

Operating in lightning columns, the British patrols were reported harassing the enemy both in his rear and on the land flank, and the communique said some enemy vehicles had been destroyed in fighting yesterday.

The Wadi Bei El Chebir is 55 miles west of Sirte and 185 miles east of Tripoli.

It was long believed that if Field Marshal Erwin Rommel tried even a delaying stand, it would be based on this wadi, or dried river bed, and Wadis Zemzem and Sofeggin which slash the Axis line of retreat in the Misurata area, 120 miles from Tripoli and 200 miles from Tunisia.

Hence it was indicated that the possibility of an Axis delaying stand had materially lessened, and it appeared that Rommel was intent only on getting his broken forces to Tunisia for the Axis last ditch stand on the African continent.

Today's communique reported little air activity in the Libyan battle area but it said naval torpedo carrying planes had attacked and sunk a southbound Axis merchant ship, laden with supplies for Hitler's African forces Monday night.

The same night planes based on

EXPAND: Allies Widen Wedge In Jap Positions Near Buna

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—American aircraft, operating from Henderson field on Guadalcanal, in the Solomons, strafed and bombed a fleet of enemy cargo ships off the island and sank two enemy vessels, the navy department reported today.

(By United Press)

GEN. M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—Two expanding Allied wedges in the Japanese beach head near Buna threatened today to isolate forces still holding out near the western end of the main Japanese air strip.

An enemy strong point containing 13 bunkers was reduced yesterday, an Allied communique said. This was in a triangular area southeast of the Buna Mission which had been bypassed in the early stages of the beach head fighting.

In eastern New Guinea, where the Japanese less than six months ago had a free hand and were planning a thrust still nearer to Australia, the enemy had left today only a strip of jungle and swamp one and three-eighths mile long and only 1,300 yards wide at its widest.

This beach head extended from the mouth of Entrance creek, near the village of Buna, to the end of the air strip from which the Japanese had been pushed back.

The Allied wedges were working toward Gairopa Point, from the east and west, in a pincers movement. The eastern wedge, moving between the beach and the enemy's air strip, expanded its salient yesterday. The western wedge, pushing through cocoanut groves and gardens, was about 500 yards from Gairopa Point, still meeting stiff opposition.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's artillery units were active all along the salients, silencing a number of guns including pom poms which

DINA CASHMAN + + +

By Kathleen Norris

CHAPTER XXII

"Yes," he answered in a low tone, turning to kick at the steel-rodded grate with his mudstained garden shoe. "But her life would have been different if she'd married me, and she would have been different. There'd have been dignity here, the background she knows" Rogers muttered She's infuriated because I could give him a commission to paint your portrait, infuriated because he needs it and because your picture will be shown at his exhibition"

"But I should think he'd have a dozen of her there!"

"He probably will But the crowd will gather around yours Portrait of Mrs. Holland is bound to attract attention, and she knows it! Down there on a ranch in Los Altos!" Rogers was back in his own thoughts again 'A woman who could walk into any doorway in the world! And he is getting his taste of it, poor fellow!" he added "Did you see the look she gave him when he said she hated the country? She doesn't want any of that before me"

"He is nice," said Dina firmly

"Yes, he's a decent sort of fellow. You looked nice yourself when you came downstairs" Rogers said "When did you get that dress?"

"The day I went shopping in San Francisco while you were at your broker's," Dina answered. 'Twenty-two fifty"

"Twenty-two fifty, eh? Well it looks worth it It's five o'clock, I think I'll go up for a shower and change"

Dina knew that Aline's call had upset him, torn between the fascination that this mysterious and beautiful woman had for him and the angry satisfaction he took in annoying her

When she came downstairs a quarter past six she found him sunk deep in a great leather chair in the small room adjoining the library, where the great carved case of a victrola stood The place was almost dark; it was buried, inundated by the glorious music of a Russian opera

Dina slipped into a neighboring chair, raised her feet to a leather hassock lost herself in the beauty and passion of the music Until Hinz awaiting an interval between records came to announce dinner, neither she nor Rogers spoke

"Want to go to Stockton?" Rogers asked her at luncheon next day 'I have to drive up there and look over a piece of property this afternoon"

"Oh I'd love to! Right now?"

"Well, as soon's luncheon 's over Any other plans?"

"None important I thought I might go down and see Mama There was nobody at home yesterday, but I can go tomorrow just as well"

"Oh, are you driving?" she asked with pleasure when a short fifteen minutes later she came out of the front door, coated and dressed for the trip, and found him waiting for her in his own open roadster

"Like that better?"

"Well, I do But I don't know why" She settled beside him in great satisfaction "What a day to go anywhere!" she exulted. "How long will it take us?"

"About two hours"

"I'd like to drive anywhere—Mexico, New York—a day like this!"

'You may have an idea there Tell me, Geraldine," he said as they drove along through the beauty and greenness of March, 'exactly what does your family live on?'

Dina laughed, unembarrassed 'Oh, I don't know," she said vaguely "Mama sold a barrel of books that were my grandfather's before we came west. But I think she only got eleven dollars for them and for two pictures"

'What sort of pictures?"

"Engravings. I think I don't remember I've never been this way before," commented Dina, absorbed in the scenery

"No, but tell me Your father gets relief, does he?"

"Well, he had some trouble getting it, but now it's all fixed It's always all gone by the end of the first week," Dina said. "Look, look, look at the white birds!"

Herons There are always herons here All right He gets his relief and it's gone Then what?'

'Well, then there was my salary, you know"

But that's stopped now"

"Yes, but I cashed that check you gave me for that dinner party and gave Mama that after we were married and last week I had an extra ten in my purse, and I let her have that too. I hope you don't mind?"

'But how about before you were working?"

I don't know" Dina said vaguely, and laughed at her own tone I really don't, Rogers,' she said 'Lots and lots of the people we know live like that You don't know how they do it!"

"That's an understatement," Rogers said, and she laughed again

'What I mean is"—she elucidated it—"there are families and families who are just struggling along on nothing, and—well, say the father is the only person in the family earning any money, and then he gets sick'

"My God!" Rogers said under his breath 'We'll, go on"

"You know, there might be little boys of seven and five and three" Dina pursued "and a baby, or a baby coming And there he is coughing in bed, with blankets over him and his wife making him poultices"

'So what happens?"

* * *

"Oh the neighbors, first," Dina explained 'Everyone hears Joe Schulz is home sick and people take in things And maybe Mama or someone else takes the baby for a while And then there's—oh, lodges and maybe employer's liability; I don't know," she finished lightly. "Everyone helps."

"But the poor fellow must worry so about getting well."

"Oh, yes, poor people worry when something goes wrong," Dina conceded. "But they don't worry unless something goes wrong!" she added cheerfully 'They don't worry about anything."

"Well, that's a point," Rogers said

"Then someone like Mr. Sorenson or the Flints will have brothers or fathers who can help them out," Dina pursued "Mrs Sorensen opened a boardinghouse, and they say she's making more money than Ole ever did She had four little girls and Johnny, but we think Johnny isn't quite all there. They all have white hair and are fat, but they are the cleanest children! They look as if they'd been boiled, and every Monday she has six or seven dresses for every one of them out on the line. Mama used to wonder how she did it But afterward they bought a bathtub, when the Morris house burned down, and I think Ole set that up for her"

"Most of the houses haven't bathtubs?"

"None of them have Has," added Dina under her breath, trying the sound of it

'Your house had?"

"Oh, no, it hadn't, Rogers"

"I see" For some reason she could not understand he sighed and fell silent, and they drove along for some time without speaking Dina let her eyes rove contentedly over the landscape that was folded with sunshine and flowers and up to the eastern mountains, faint purple blue against a scarcely darker sky.

She was sorry when they reached Stockton and were in the pleasant streets of its outlying districts, between gardens and cottages and pepper and blooming hawthorn trees.

"My Aunt Sarah Forrester lived up here," Rogers presently told her, "and since she died a year ago her place has stood empty. I've put some cleaners in there and had a little painting done, and I thought I'd see what it looks like"

The section in which they stopped had obviously once been the fashionable end of town, for neglected, forlorn, pretentious mansions still stood in bare garden spaces their windows adorned with every sign that shabby gentility knows "Modes," "Violin Studio' 'Table Board," "Rooms,' 'Rooms"

Between these old dwellings factories shops and gas stations had established themselves and cheap apartment houses had risen, the house Rogers identified as the one they were seeking stood however well raised above a brick bulkhead on a corner and so had lost none of its air or light

It was a yellow double-bay-windowed cottage with overgrown lilac and syringa bushes along the side street and two great shaggy palms flanking the front path Rogers and Dina could walk in at the front door, for activities of all sorts were going on inside and all the doors and windows were open to the spring air and sunshine

'Aunt Sarah left a lot of furniture here,' Rogers said, indicating with a jerk of his head a canvas-covered mound in the back parlor 'Beds and chairs and bureaus Caroline came up after she died and took some of the rugs and all the silver and china"

They were in the dining room again, and he leaned against a round oak table that had been pushed against a wall, took out his pipe and stuffed it without removing his eyes from Dina

"Why shouldn't I let your family live in my aunt's old house?" Rogers asked 'It's been standing empty since she died I've a man who comes once a week to keep the grass cut; that's all it costs me Why shouldn't it be occupied? It's a nice house"

He indicated with a wave of his pipe the darkened room, whose window shades were drawn against the afternoon sun

Oh, but—but"—her eyes were pulsating wells of light—"but they'll go perfectly crazy. Myrna will go crazy!" she said. "A bathroom! And closets. Big closets! Oh, but I don't believe it!"

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Wire Editor Ken Woodman and I have a long-standing joke about all these novels that start out:

"Spring came early that year—"

Or,

"Spring came late that year—"

Or,

"Spring was right on time that year."

And then the story goes on without any connection to spring, and usually the most stirring action occurs under a summer sun, or a flash summer flood, or next winter's blizzard, or several years later.

* * *

Merely a trick of the trade to get the story under way, we've decided.

And now we have the lead line for our best seller of 1943:

"Spring came around on the first day of winter that year, stuck around for a one-week stand before discovering the error. Was spring embarrassed?" The rest of the book, of course, has nothing to do with Spring.

As my corpulent friend Dutch Dehnert, the old New York Celt, reminded me one night a year ago, when a mild blizzard held down the attendance at a pro basketball game at the high school to a mere handful of the faithful:

"You can't fool around with Mother Nature. The old lady won't stand for it." Or words to that effect.

Which reminds me that I had an idea one time of bringing in a few pro basketball teams this winter to liven up the sports scene, since the city league was leaving the high school gym, and Joe Lesch, usual promoter of such basketball extravaganzas, was away learning to be an army flyer.

That idea has been forgotten long since. Although it was a very good idea at that, and one that would have been very helpful to the present high school basketball team.

Last year's Tygers learned a lot of tricks watching Detroit and Toledo and the Renaissance and House of David.

But there are no pro basketball teams roaming the countryside this winter.

They are a cagey lot, these pro cagers.

They don't want to be stuck between an A card and a snowdrift.

This is the kind of column you write when there's no kind of column to write. Right?

Training Camp Facts Scarce

Confusion Expected To Be Cleared Up Shortly.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK —(AP)— Facts still were as scarce as Grade AA butter today in the confusion surrounding the major league training season, but developments were expected shortly.

Commissioner K M. Landis was discovered in Washington and, although the Office of ODT Director Joseph B. Eastman said the baseball leader had no appointment, it is unlikely that Landis made the trip from his Chicago home to deliver holiday greetings

The two Chicago clubs announced they would do their spring conditioning in French Lick, Ind., less than 300 miles from their home parks. The day before, the Boston Red Sox chose Tufts university as their training site.

Even though Landis may not see Eastman and gain an official definition of the ODT's recent request that clubs curtail spring training travel, a majority of baseball leaders expected him to obtain enough information to eliminate most of the confusion.

The consensus was that if Landis received any inkling of what the ODT desired he would call a joint meeting of major league owners to relay the information and make any needed revisions in the schedule.

There was no confusion concerning the march of players into the service.

Charles (Red) Ruffing, right-handed pitcher for the New York Yankees, was classified 1-B by a Los Angeles board and inducted immediately for limited service.

Terry Moore, fleet centerfielder for the World Champion St. Louis Cardinals, announced he would leave shortly for Panama to become a civilian director of athletics in an army camp.

Ex-Stars Get Call To Action

Big League Clubs Must Get Players Somewhere.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK — (INS) — From the way things have been going of late it wouldn't be surprising if some of the elderly gents who fall loosely into the category of retired ex-stars are seen wearing uniforms in the major leagues again next baseball season.

* * *

They're going to have to get ball players from somewhere, and it might just as well be out of the scrapbooks of the past.

Owner Tom Yawkey, of the Boston Red Sox, actually has told Lefty Mose Grove to keep in shape. Perhaps Yawkey was kidding the fire-balling southpaw of yore. But he could be serious about it all. Pitchers who can get the ball up to the plate will be worth as much per pound on the hoof in this country as so much beefsteak in some of the lands across the oceans.

All the club-owners will ask of their hired hands next year is that they are not too fat to bend over and not too old to stand a couple of hours in the sun every day. They can be grey-haired, bald-headed, rheumatic, and in need of a shot of oil in the joints to silence the creaks—and they still will be welcome as the flowers in March down in Florida or out in California, where the ball clubs used to train.

Fat Fred Fitzsimmons, who virtually retired from pitching to coach the Brooklyn Dodgers, is committed to hurling next season. He has been held up for all to see in recent seasons as a portly old pappy-guy but next season will be a sylph-like young squirt compared to some.

All this would furnish a nostalgic highlight to 1943 baseball. What could be sweeter than Lefty Mose Grove and Dizzy Dean opposing each other on the mound?

* * *

There will be mere youngsters in there, too, kids who in normal times would continue their teething in the minors Things, in fact, will be pretty thoroughly mixed up. This is spreading to other branches of sports with horrifying prospects in some cases. Having suveyed the heavyweight field, paunchy Tony Galento is threatening a comeback. That's a terrible thing to contemplate even in war times in the face of the probable truth in Galento's assertion that currently active heavyweights are utterly lacking in artistry and finesse. He didn't put it that way, but the meaning was the same.

I think he vaguely mentioned something about "bums."

Look who's talking, but any way athletes are getting so scarce that some of the baseball club-owners really are a little fretful. Every day they learn where another star has been called in or has jumped in without being called; others are flocking into the defense plants and the owners have come to realize that elderly players at least have the advantage of experience.

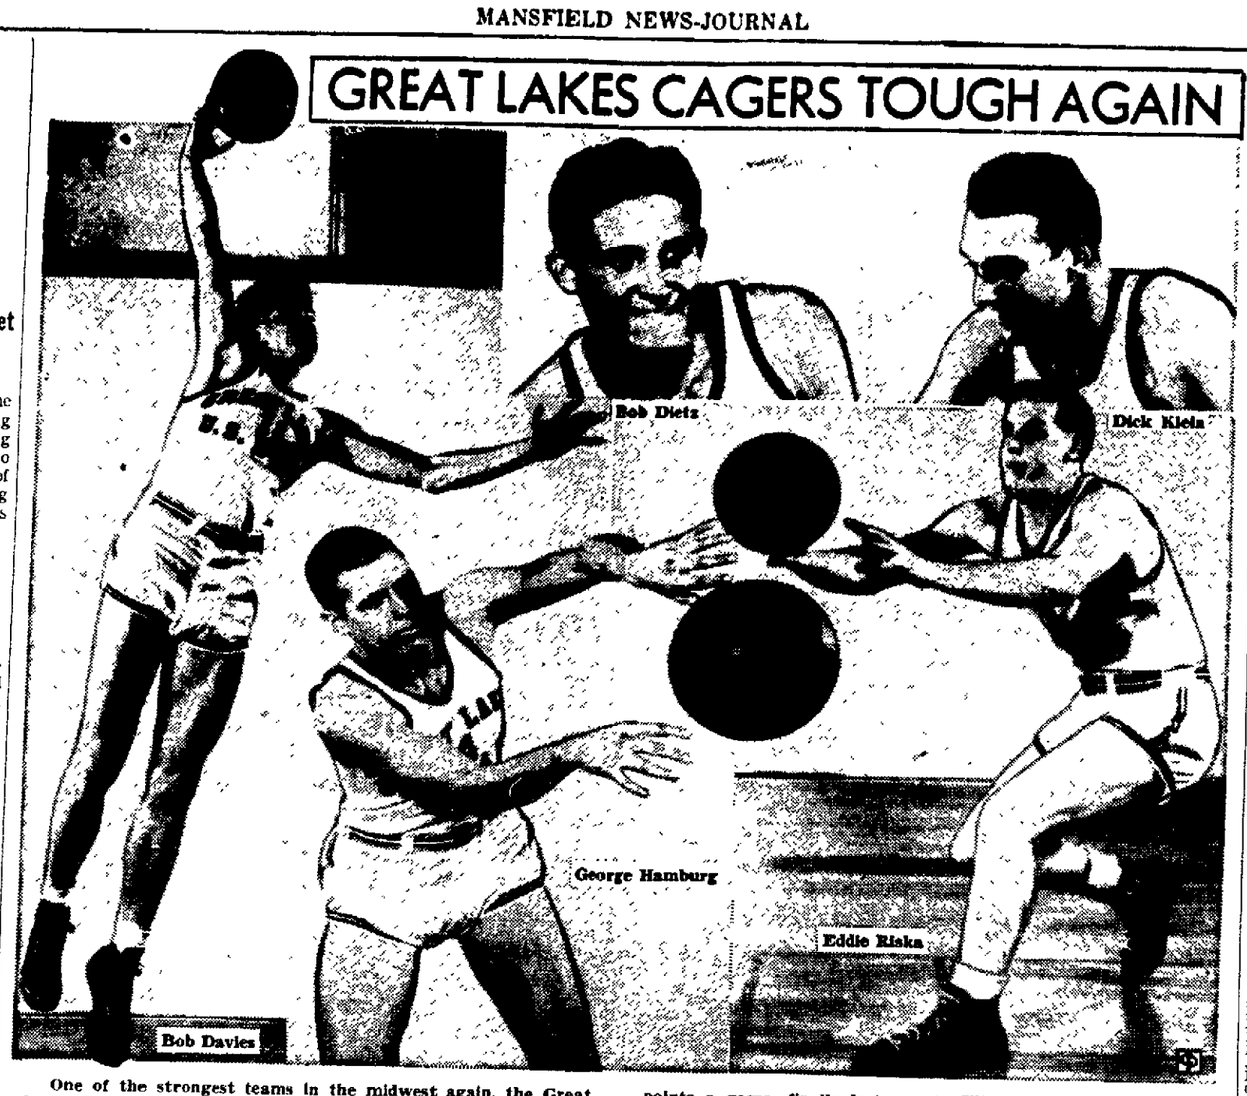
It may take some of them a powerful long time to get into shape under training conditions that will prevail in the east and mid-west far, far away from that warming sun. They won't get good and thawed out until mid-season, and then their old legs will begin to buckle up and their arms will be full of aches and pains and the spots will come before their eyes.

* * *

Some of them may have to share positions, playing three or four innings each then leaving for the cool clubhouse to recuperate for the next day. The owners and managers would much prefer that their athletes be able to go a full nine innings, of course. And it would be very funny if Stengel, Frisch, Dykes, and some of those other managers who have been taking it easy on the bench would have to get back in there again. Funny? It would be downright hilarious.

GREAT LAKES CAGERS TOUGH AGAIN



One of the strongest teams in the midwest again, the Great Lakes Naval Training Station team, coached by Lieut. Paul D. (Tony) Hinkle, formerly head coach at Butler U., has another tough schedule of 36 games, including such opponents as Illinois, Ohio State, Stanford, Northwestern, Purdue, Wisconsin, Michigan State, Minnesota and Notre Dame. The Sailors, romping through their first six games without defeat and averaging 55 points a game, finally lost one to Illinois. Stars of the team, and there are many, include Eddie Riska, formerly of Notre Dame; George Hamburg, ex-Colorado ace; Bob Dietz of Butler, Bob Davies of Seton Hall and Dick Klein of Northwestern. Among other star ex-collegians on the squad are Chet Aubuchon of Michigan State, George Glamack of North Carolina, Forrest Sprowl of Purdue and Forrest Anderson of Stanford.

Cage Tourney Fate Decided

State Athletic Board Holds Session Today.

COLUMBUS—(U P)—A transportation-conscious governing board of the Ohio high school athletic association meets today to decide the future of Ohio scholastic basketball tournaments amid indications that other tournaments such as baseball, track, tennis and golf might be cancelled next year.

Choice of Columbus as site for the annual "A" and "B" basketball championship tournaments—if ther are held—was freely predicted. With its central state location, Columbus was reported to be the nearest answer to gasoline and transportation problems which association members could find.

It was believed likely also that the pre-war plan of having 16 teams in each division journeying to the state finals again would be dropped as it was last March in favor of four finalists.

Columbus could not offer the fairgrounds coliseum for the tournament because the army has taken it over, but the Columbus Auditorium where Ohio State University plans its games has a seating capacity of 4,000.

Directors indicated, however, that even the 4,000 attendance would not be met this year because of the war.

The fate of the other sports remained undecided because most schools, especially those in rural districts, were expected to dismiss students earlier this year because of the growing demand for young farm manpower.

Last year's "A" basketball finals were held at Kent with Xenia Central the victor. Somerset won the "B" title at Springfield. Both teams have been defeated this year.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A new administrative setup for the navy's pre-flight schools goes into effect Jan. 1, but nearly as we can make out, it won't mean any less sports activity. . . . Instead of each school coming under their respective naval districts, they'll all be under the jurisdiction of the air primary training command. . . . Similarly, the more advanced schools will come under the air operational training command.... The big change, which was scheduled anyway, will be that the teams will have to do most of their playing close to home.

GUY WITH AN IDEA.

Writing to Bob Dunbar of the Boston Herald, G. D. Bourcy of Arlington, Mass., suggests that baseball should adopt football's "free substitution" rule if it has to rely upon old-timers and teen-age kids to keep the game going. . . . Thus a manager might even recall Babe Ruth to do the hitting and hire a couple of lively high school boys to run for him. . . . The possibilities, in fact, seem limitless—which probably is what's wrong with the idea.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE.

Sgt. Joe Louis, in town on a furlough from Fort Riley, Kan., didn't know until he called on Mike Jacobs that Mike is in Miami. . . . Asked whether he preferred to be called "Champ" or "Sarge," Louis replied: "Just call me Joe." . . . Coach Frank Keaney, whose Rhode Island State basketball teams run up those huge scores, says: "I've been called 105 names so far—the nicest was 'unsound'."

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Ed Danforth, Atlanta Journal: "The gasoline ban was relieved just in time to allow Tropical park, miles from Miami, to reopen and thousands of visitors to spend a dismal Christmas moaning over their losses."

Georgia Still Ranks Favorite

PASADENA, Calif—(AP)—Expert opinion seems agreed there is really sound logic behind those 3-1 odds that Georgia beats U. C. L. A in the Rose Bowl New Year day.

There is no yardstick of comparison. The Bruins and Bulldogs met no common foes. Georgia, a team of veterans that won 20 of its last 22 games, established numerous yardage and scoring records in 1942. By many it is regarded as the greatest passing outfit in the history of southern football.

Dixie newspapermen with the team here are unanimous in their belief Georgia rates a decided edge. They take into consideration, too, that the Pacific Coast champion always gives a good account of itself, even to the point of winning the last five Rose Bowl games.

Most observers agreed the two best teams in the nation were Ohio State and Georgia.

Jeff Cravath, University of Southern California coach, takes the floor for the instant. Jeff's team scored two touchdowns against Ohio State, one against U. C. L. A, says Jeff:

"This game figures to be Georgia all the way. If Babe Horrell can come up with a winner he deserves to be called the miracle coach of the year. Sure, I'd like to see U. C. L. A. win, but I pick Georgia, unhesitatingly."

TENNIS TOURNAMENT DOUBLES IN FINALS

NEW ORLEANS, La. —(INS)— Confident of extending their 2 to 1 set lead to victory, Charles Mattman of New York and Bill Talbert of Cincinnati were ready to meet Earl Bartlett and Jack Tuero, both of New Orleans, in the Sugar Bowl tennis doubles finals today.

Darkness halted the match yesterday with Mattman and Talbert leading 6-2, 8-6, 9-11.

Y JUNIORS TROUNCE APPLESEED HI-Y

Piling up a 24 to 9 halftime lead, the Y. M. C. A. Junior cagers coasted to a 38 to 21 triumph over Johnny Appleseed Hi-Y five at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon.

Gilbert and Watkins shared scoring honors for the Y quint with ten points each while Glasscock also had ten for the losers.

NEW YORK RANGERS BEAT BOSTON BRUINS

BOSTON—(U P)—The New York Rangers climbed into a tie for fifth place in the National Hockey league with the idle Montreal Canadiens by trouncing the Bruins, 5-3 before 13,500 fans—largest Boston crowd of the season—Tuesday night.

It was the Bruins' first defeat in 11 home games and left them tied for first place with the idle Toronto Maple Leafs. The Rangers scored twice in the first and second periods and once in the third when Boston rallied for three goals.

HARRY BOBO WINS OVER BUDDY WALKER

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Harry Bobo, Pittsburgh Negro heavyweight, held the Columbus version of the "duration" boxing crown today with a 10-round victory over Buddy Walker of Columbus.

The giant Negro had little trouble punching out a decision over Walker before 2,000 fans in the Columbus auditorium last night. The judges' decision in favor of Bobo was unanimous.

St. John's Cagers Hit Hot Pace

Nikolaus, Flockenzier Spark 66-30 Victory.

By WALLY DAVIS

ST. JOHNS' CAGERS continued to sweep through the Senior Church league opposition last night, smashing a game but outclassed Congregational five in the opener of a four-game program at the Y. M. C. A. 66 to 30.

Sparked by Nikolaus and Flockenzier, St. Johns piled up a 34 to 10 advantage at halftime and completed the rout with 14 points in the third quarter and 18 in the final.

The Congregational outfit just couldn't stop Nikolaus and Flockenzier, the two tossing in 22 and 19 points respectively.

Gibson and Bancroft tried vainly to keep their team in the ball game but it was to no avail. Gibson had 12 points while Bancroft chalked up 11.

In the second game of the evening, Grace Gospel defeated Episcopal 27 to 15, with Pfaff scoring 13 points to pace the winners. The score at the end of the first quarter was 8 to 5, Grace Gospel leading. They increased the lead to 14-8 at intermission and led 21 to 12 entering the fourth frame.

St. Lukes cut off a Baptist rally in the fourth quarter to emerge with a 30 to 25 triumph in the third contest.

Brandt and Lace paced the Lutherans with 10 points each while Weber had seven for the losers. St. Luke grabbed a 15-8 lead in the first half but was outscored 17-15 in the final two periods. The game was marked by the ejection of two players for roughness.

* * *

The finale was a one-sided victory for the First Lutheran over St. Matthews, the final score reading 43 to 13.

The victors got away to a 9-4 edge in the first quarter, then piled up 12 points in the second while holding St. Matthews to one field goal. They led 33 to 8 entering the last quarter.

Bayer dropped in eight field goals and one free toss for 17 tallies to pace First Lutheran. Lenard and D. Flockenzier each had four for St. Matthews.

JUDGE PUFFLE— By Gene Ahern

THE LETTER WAS ADDRESSED, "HIS LORDSHIP," WHICH MEANS HE'S A TITLED NOBLEMAN,—BUT GOES INCOGNITO AS COLONEL DRAYHOSS!—IT WOULD BE A SOCIAL ERROR TO ASK HIM ABOUT IT!
I SUGGEST IT'S PROPER WE ALL WEAR OUR COATS WHEN HE SITS TO DINE WITH US!
WE EAT LUNCH TOGETHER OUT AT THE WAR PLANT;— —SHOULD I SIT ON A BOX LOWER THAN HIS BARREL?
HE'S STILL COLONEL DRAYHOSS TO ME!
HE WANTS 'EM TO GO ON DRESS PARADE

FAIRLY ACTIVE TRADING FINDS PRICES MIXED

Manpower Instead of Scrap Becomes Headache For Steel Industry.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stock prices were mixed at a fairly active trading pace in early market dealings today.

Fractional gainers at the start included Anaconda, Standard Oil (N. J.), General Electric, Douglas and Consolidated Edison. Laggard were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, and United Aircraft.

Followers of steels turned to an outline of the industry's wartime problems in the Iron Age, which said the manpower situation likely would become a major headache and that in the Youngstown area alone the worker shortage exceeded 5,000 men.

Those interested in electric and allied shares noted that Edison Electric Institute's estimate of power distribution during the Christmas week showed a seasonal drop from the pre-holiday peak to an estimated 3,675,000,000 kilowatt hours.

FLOOD MENACE INCREASES AS RAIN CONTINUES

County Streams Run Bankfull, Pittsburgh, Ohio Valley Hard Hit.

tury swirled into Pittsburgh as federal weather forecasters revised predictions for the sixth time and estimated the crest would hit around 10 feet above floor stage in Pittsburgh tonight.

At the "Point," tip of the famous triangle in the downtown district, the water-gauge recorded 30.8 feet at 10 o'clock this morning. Weatherman W. S. Brotzman predicted a peak of between 34 and 35 feet would be reached this evening.

Flood stage at the "Point," where the Allegheny and the Monongahela rivers converge to form the Ohio, is 25 feet.

The anticipated peak of 35 feet, however, will still be considerably lower than the record-breaker of March 1936, when the rivers crested at 46 feet and caused millions of dollars worth of damage.

The Ohio rose above 40 feet at Cincinnati with passing of the 52-foot flood stage expected Friday.

Civilian defense and Red Cross disaster committees stood prepared to evacuate and care for residents in many sections. Fifty families had already been evacuated at Empire, 12 miles north of Steubenville, with more expecting to have to move.

Flood waters hampered production at the Republic Steel corporation's plant in Youngstown as the swollen Mahoning river rose steadily. This did not force a shutdown as open hearth furnaces were not yet affected, but would be with 16 inches more water. Hot iron trains were rerouted to keep the plant in production.

State Highway Director Hal G. Sours reported more than a score of Ohio highways closed because of the high water.

Roads closed include:

Route 35 between Chillicothe and Jackson; Route 50 alternate at Amestville, Gallia county, Route 36 at Mohawk dam, Coshocton county; Route 73 at Barden, Scioto county; Route 75 between Blackford and Ironton; Route 77 between Blissfield and Holmes county line; Route 103 between Route 53 and 23; Route 146 between 21 and 672 in Guernsey county; Route 256 closed ¼ mile west of Thurston, Route 256 between Route 40 and 285 Guernsey county; Route 285 between Old Washington and Winterset, Guernsey county; Route 294 closed in Wyandotte county; Route 124, 248 and 33 in Meigs county; Route 78 in Monroe county; Route 56 and 76 in Washington county, Route 224 at Mahoning river 1,000 feet east of Portage, Mahoning county line; Route 141 in Gallia county.

DASHES HOPES OF MORE GAS

Byrnes Sees No Chance to Boost Eastern Ration Quota.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Any hopes which east coast motorists may have held for relaxation of the recent cuts in their gasoline rations were dashed today by increasing military and lend-lease demands for petroleum.

Economic Czar James F. Byrnes after a conference with top railroad executives, said that he saw no hope of being able to boost the amount of gasoline and fuel now being rationed to civilians from Maine to Florida.

A step toward alleviating the shortage was taken, however, by the office of defense transportation which ordered nearly one-half of the nations 143,000 tank cars frozen in petroleum service for the Atlantic shortage areas.

MALADY STRIKES

HASTINGS-ON-HUDSON, N. Y. —(AP)— Dr. William A. Holla, Westchester county commissioner of health, blamed a preparation used in making cables today for killing three persons and making 500 ill.

Dr. Holla said they had contracted a disease from bodily contact with hydro-carbons with a high chlorine content.

REVEALS TOUHY MOB DRINKING

Hoover Says Savage Fight Led To Round-up of Vicious Gang.

felons selected for their hideout a few weeks after their prison break.

"On Dec. 5," Hoover said, Nelson got drunk. The men were living under a steel discipline imposed by the leaders (Touhy and Banghart). Stewart had been left in charge and he had been warned against letting Nelson get drunk."

Hoover said that when Touhy and Banghart returned to the apartment and found Nelson drunk they were enraged and gave Stewart a brutal "pistol whipping," that is, they beat him mercilessly with the butts of their pistols.

McInerney, O'Connor and Darlak were reported to have assisted in the savage punishment.

Horst, agent for the apartment, said Mrs. Horst went to Nelson's room the day after the fight and found it empty. Mrs. Horst said there were bloodstains all over the floor and furniture. Pillows and bedclothes were soaked with blood.

That led to the partial break-up of the gang and, it was believed, to the capture of five of the members and the killing of the other two.

Nelson went to Minneapolis where his mother lives and told his story. Relatives were understood to have notified FBI agents in the Twin Cities, although Hoover would not admit this. Nelson was arrested there and the arrest of Stewart in Chicago followed shortly.

Hoover did not say that either Nelson or Stewart had "squealed" but it was within a few days afterward that the trail of the remainder of the gang was picked up in Chicago, at the Leland avenue apartment and later at the Kenmore avenue apartment where the other gangsters went after the fight.

Then began the elaborate preparations for the trap. A federal agent went to the Leland avenue place and, posing as a building inspector, informed the manager, Mrs. Anthony Battaglia, that alterations would have to be made in the middle and rear apartments on the third floor.

The tenants were forced to move out and the G-men moved right in.

The trap was sprung when O'Connor and McInerney returned to their room at 11:30 Monday night.

As O'Connor placed the key to the room in the lock, federal agents posted in the hallway ordered the men to surrender. Instead both began firing wildly and dashed for the stairway.

Agents on the third floor riddled them with gunfire and as they somersaulted down the stairs they were met by bullets from other G-men on the second floor.

Other agents were on the first floor blocking all exits. The place was entirely surrounded. Nearby streets and alleys were blocked. The elaborate precautions were unnecessary, for O'Connor and McInerney apparently were killed by the first thunderous volley.

A few hours later, FBI Chief Hoover led his men to the Kenmore avenue apartment where Touhy, Banghart and Darlak were asleep.

The agents had with them rifles, pistols, submachine guns, tear gas bombs, spotlights and a portable loud speaker. When the agents had surrounded the place, and had illuminated the apartment building on all sides with spotlights and automobile lights, the voice of Assistant FBI Director E. J. Connelley boomed forth over the loudspeaker:

"You men are surrounded! There are agents on all sides of the building and on the roof. Every exit is blocked and you haven't got a chance.

"Come out of the apartment with your hands up and walking backward, Banghart, you come out first, then Touhy and then Darlak."

Ten tense minutes elapsed and then out they came, in that order.

The technical charge against the gangsters which brought the FBI into the case was that the felons had failed to report to their draft boards after they went over the walls of Stateville prison.

Banghart is the only one against whom another federal charge exists. He was convicted of a $100,000 mail robbery at Charlotte, N. C., and sentenced to 36 years to be served concurrently with the 99-year sentence for the kidnaping of John "Jake the Barber" Factor.

Touhy and others of his original gang were serving similar sentences for the kidnaping. They were convicted in a state court in Chicago.

CRACK DOWN

OPA Officials Seek Arrest of Beef Bootleggers.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Widespread bootlegging of uninspected beef in Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, Indiana and West Virginia today moved the Cleveland regional OPA office to crack down on "black market" operations of irregular slaughterers.

Warrants for the arrest of two sellers have been issued, James C. Gruener, regional OPA attorney said, and others will follow.

Legitimate packers and dealers and the consumers being supplied by them are being deprived of their fair share of meat by the "black market" operations and the health of many communities is being endangered, Gruener said.

STOCK LEADERS HIT IRREGULAR SKID ON BOARD

Federal Reserve Loans For Week Ending Dec. 23 Drop 60 Million.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks continued to move irregularly lower in today's early market proceedings.

Off fractionally at an active opening were American Telephone, Chrysler, Western Union, and Goodrich. Minor gains were posted for Bethlehem, Chesapeake & Ohio, and Allied Chemical.

Boardroom observers noted the Federal Reserve summary disclosing loans to commerce, industry and agriculture by member banks in 101 cities during the week ended Dec. 23 dropped $60,000,000. Borrowings of brokers and dealers in securities also fell $356,000,000, apparently reflecting completion of the government's December financing program.

GRANTS STAY IN INDECENCY CASE

Justice Says Jurors Should Have Seen 'Wine, Women' to Judge It.

NEW YORK —(AP)— The jury that convicted three heads of "Wine, Women and Song" of presenting an indecent show should have seen the revue in the flesh first, Supreme Court Justice J. Sidney Bernstein holds—and the trial judge should have gone, too.

The fact they saw no evidence beyond the spoken word and some gestures by witnesses led Justice Bernstein yesterday to grant a motion for a certificate of reasonable doubt staying execution of a six-month jail sentence imposed on Isidore H. Herk, producer.

The defense had wanted the jury to witness the show, but General Sessions Judge Owen W. Bohan ruled that descriptions provided by witnesses should have to suffice.

Marshall Field, president of the Philharmonic - Symphony society, announced last night the selection of Dr. Rodzinski as musical director and conductor of the New York orchestra for 1943-44.

Cleveland orchestra officials said the selection of his successor has not been considered.

WALLACE URGES WATCH ON JAP, NAZI SCHOOLS

Wants Jobs and Security For All In His Blueprint of 'Free World Democracy.'

the American people to start setting the pattern now for a post-war world and promised that the aim of this war was to preserve liberty, equality, security and unity—"liberty in a political sense, equality of opportunity in international trade, security against war and business depression due to international causes, and unity of purpose in promoting the general welfare of the world."

"The task of our generation," he said, "is so to organize human affairs that no Adolf Hitler, no power-hungry war mongers, whatever their nationality, can ever again plunge the whole world into war and bloodshed. . . .

"The United Nations must back up military disarmament with psychological disarmament — supervision, or at least inspection, of the school systems of Germany and Japan—to undo so far as possible the diabolical work of Hitler and the Japanese war lords in poisoning the minds of the young. . . .

"And now we of this generation . . . go forward to meet the challenge of our day. For the challenge we all face is the challenge of free world democracy. In the new democracy there will be a place for everyone—the worker, the farmer, the business man, the housewife, the doctor, the salesman, the teacher, the student, the store clerk, the taxi driver, the preacher, the engineer—all the millions who make up our modern world."

In order to accomplish this, Wallace said, there must be:

1. A vigorous and workable world compact to disarm aggressors and insure world peace through economic cooperation, backed up by a new world court to settle disputes which otherwise would lead to war.

2. An international court presupposes some kind of world council, so that whatever world system evolves will have enough flexibility to meet changing circumstances as they arise.

3. Any such organization must confine itself to broad principles which affect the whole world, leaving each country or region the freedom to deal with purely domestic or regional problems.

4. Plans made now, while the war is raging, for speedy conversion of industry back to peacetime operations so that every person who gave up a job to join the armed forces or go into war work will have a new job when the peace is signed.

"Resolved as we are to fight on to final victory in this worldwide people's war," he said, "we are justified in looking ahead to the peace that will inevitably come. Indeed, it would be the height of folly not to prepare for peace, just as in the years prior to Dec. 7, 1941, it would have been the height of folly not to prepare for war. . . .

"We cannot now blueprint all the details but we can begin now to think about some of the guiding principles . . . two of these principles must be liberty and unity or in other words, home rule and centralized authority, which for more than 150 years have been foundation stones of our American democracy and our American union."

Wallace said the American people were not ready for participation in such a broad world program at the time Woodrow Wilson proposed the League of Nations. But, he believes now that the United States "has learned her lesson and is willing to assume a responsibility proportionate to her strength."

In this post-war planning, he said, there must be equal treatment for victor and vanquished —"revenge for the sake of revenge would be a sign of barbarism. We must make absolutely sure that the guilty leaders are punished, that the defeated nation realizes its defeat and is not permitted to rearm."

Economic reconstruction also will play an important role in the building of an enduring peace, he said, in this the United States can help by providing guidance, technical advice and capital investment. He cited experience with the Philippines as a case in point.

The post-war period will find the United States with tremendous surpluses of agricultural and industrial products.

"We can be decently human and really hard-headed if we exchange our post-war surplus goods, for peace, and for improving the standard of living of so-called backward peoples," he said. "We can get more for our surplus production in this way than by any high-tariff, penny-pinching, isolationist policies which hide under the cloak of 100 per cent Americanism.

Another part of the picture, Wallace said, must be full employment here at home.

Wallace said "free world democracy" would require the wholehearted support of all the peoples of the United Nations.

whom Roger Touhy led in a sensational break from the Stateville (Ill.) penitentiary last Oct. 9.

Summerdale police said the third apartment to which some other gang members were traced was also on the north side.

The FBI kept a tight lid of secrecy on the case throughout the night but an agent finally told reporters that Hoover would issue a "complete statement" later at a press conference.

Hoover arrived unexpectedly at FBI downtown headquarters about 1 a. m., his movements thereafter being hidden except for police disclosures.

Touhy, 11, prohibition era liquor ruler of Chicago's northwest side, and Banghart, 42, machine gunner for the old Touhy mob and described by Chicago detectives as the toughest man who ever walked into their bureau, were serving 99 years each for the 1933 kidnaping of John Factor when they escaped.

With them over the prison wall went O'Connor and McInerney and William Smith Stewart, Matthew Nelson and Edward Darlak. Stewart and Nelson were life termers; Darlak was serving 199 years for murdering a policeman.

Bodies of the two slain men were removed some four hours after the first FBI raid, when reporters gained entry to the Leland avenue premises.

The fugitives who fell into the G-men's trap had been occupying a two-room third floor apartment. Agents had taken rooms a short distance down and across a winding hall.

There were peepholes drilled in the door of the room used by the agents. Their quarry evidently came up the stairs, unsuspecting last night. Residents surmised the waiting agents opened their door, called upon the fugitives to halt or surrender and that probably the gangsters went for their guns.

Obviously the agents let loose a withering blast. The hallway woodwork, plaster and doors were shattered by shotgun and machine gun slugs. The bannister was splintered. The whole scene was blood splattered.

One of the slain gangsters evidently tumbled over the bannister to the second floor. The other apparently rolled down the winding stairway to the same level.

Anthony Battaglia, manager of the building, said O'Connor rented an apartment Dec. 10 under the name of "Peterson," and McInerney moved in with him.

Battaglia identified Touhy and Banghart, from pictures, as men who later moved in but left Christmas day, visiting the place several times since and as late as 9 a. m. yesterday. He said a fifth man was there part of the time.

"Of course I didn't know who these men were," Battaglia said. "They didn't say what their occupation was but they treated me fine; gave me $1 and $2 tips and $3 on Christmas."

He said federal agents rented rooms about a week ago.

Neighborhood residents said the federal agents must have made elaborate plans for the last night's foray. Automobiles with motors running were parked at strategic locations in the street and nearby alleys. In addition to the agents inside the apartment, others were posted to command entrances and windows to the building.

The fugitives arrived shortly before midnight, the agents permitting them to get well inside the entrance before challenging them.

Dummy tanks used for anti-tank-gun practice are about one-third normal size and are generally made of wood.

Flood Menace Grows as Rain Continues

PITTSBURGH, OHIO VALLEY TOWNS PERILED

County Streams Run Bankfull, Water at Charles Mill Rises Foot an Hour.

HIGHWAYS WASHING OUT

Pittsburgh Has Worst December Flood In Century; Ohio Families Evacuated.

Gauges were carefully watched and flood gates accordingly manipulated at the Charles Mill dam today as .78 inches of rainfall in the past 24 hours sent the water level behind the dam to 14.1 feet, as other waterways of the county and state alike were at flood stage or near it.

The water level at the dam was rising this morning at a rate of 11 feet per hour, according to Ellsworth Secrest, engineer, with the peak due to be reached about 72 hours after the rain subsides. Last April's all time high of 18.1 feet may be reached by that time, Secrest said.

Today's weather forecast was for colder weather but with rain continuing.

Ditches and streams of Richland county were running bank full with some damage being reported in lower valleys of the Rocky Fork creek. Most serious of the damages in the county, however, were roads broken through by the thaw, according to Howard Sword, county engineer. Roads having a "Telford base" of large and small stones were roughest as the smaller stones disintegrated and the larger ones worked to the surface, while other roads without such a base were, in some cases, close to the "mirring" stage, Sword said.

Richland county has had a 2.39 inch rainfall since Christmas.

Meanwhile in various other sections of the state, rivers and creeks overflowed their banks to inundate highways and streets. Flood warnings were issued in the Liverpool-Wellsville and Youngstown districts.

The Ohio river neared a 35-foot flood stage in the upper Ohio valley, and the worst December flood in the past cen-

Drinking, Savage Fighting Among Gangsters Revealed to Have Led to Touhy Mob Round-Up

Hoover Says Leaders Hit Gang Member With Pistol Butts.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO—The vicious Touhy-Banghart criminal gang came to its sudden end, with two men shot to death and the other five captured by J. Edgar Hoover's FBI agents, through liquor and savage fighting among themselves, it was disclosed today.

The five captured were held today in federal custody pending a decision by Attorney General Francis Biddle on whether the government will prosecute them or return them to Statesville prison from which they fled in a daring break last Oct. 9.

They are Roger ("Terrible") Touhy, Basil ("The Owl") Banghart, chief trigger-man for the Touhy mob; Edward Darlak, murderer of a Chicago policeman; Matthew Nelson whose record was 39 robberies when he last was sentenced, and William Stewart, also a robber.

Touhy, Banghart and Darlak were seized before dawn yesterday in an elaborately staged raid led by Hoover himself upon an apartment at 5116 Kenmore avenue.

The capture of Nelson Dec. 16 in Minneapolis was the start of the round-up of the notorious criminals. Three days later Stewart was seized in Chicago.

Those slain in a furious gun battle with FBI agents in another apartment, at 1254 Leland avenue, were James O'Connor, a thief since 15 and twice a jail breaker before his escape with Touhy, and St. Clair McInerney, "The Saint," a robber and habitual criminal.

They were killed at 11:30 p. m. Monday, about five hours before Touhy and his companions were trapped as they slept, by Hoover and between 40 and 50 G-men, many of them brought here for the round-up from other cities.

The story of the part liquor and fighting had in uncovering the whereabouts of the seven gangsters was told part by Hoover and in part by John Horst and his wife, Emma, agents for the Doversun apartment, which the

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the FBI, revealed today that drinking and fighting among members of the Touhy gang led to the round-up of the mobsters. Above at left, a closet filled with cans of food and empty champagne bottles in the Chicago apartment occupied by Touhy and his men indicates that the killers and robbers lived high. Touhy is shown in the inset. The picture at right shows police putting the body of one of the two gangsters slain by G-men into a patrol wagon.

HOLDS PARLEY ON GAMBLING 'CHALLENGE'

Mayor Talks To McFarland, Wolff After Kalbfleisch's Enforcement Blast.

JUDGE, CHIEF ABSENT

Locke Reported To Have Said He's 'Tired of Being Made the Goat.'

Quoted as having said he was "tired of being made the goat" Mayor W. J. Locke today held a conference of advisors, purportedly to decide what action would be taken on the challenge laid down yesterday by Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch either to enforce existing gambling laws or call for their repeal.

Today's conference followed a brief interview yesterday with Judge Kalbfleisch shortly after the jurist's challenge made from the bench as he passed sentence in a gambling case.

Among those seen entering the mayor's office when the conference started was Earl McFarland, former mayor. Judge Kalbfleisch had not received an invitation up to 11:30 a. m. Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff was another of the conferees. Police Chief Thomas M. Bell was not present.

Under the laws of the land, according to City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner, the mayor of a city is the chief conservator or enforcer of the city's laws.

Chief Bell and other members of the police department today did not appear unduly perturbed by Judge Kalbfleisch's attack on "spotty" law enforcement.

The jurist's remarks accompanied the sentencing of a slot machine owner and he referred to the recent arrest of a colored man as a numbers seller.

"Surely I am not to believe," the Judge said, "that he (the colored man) runs the numbers games any more than I am to believe that this defendant is the major offender with his machines.

"So long as this spotty type of enforcement continues the general public will be entitled to challenge the honesty and integrity of all of us charged with the responsibility of enforcing the law."

Chief Bell this morning indicated he has received no specific instructions regarding the gambling situation, remarking, "I'll let you know" when asked if any action is to be taken.

Slash Through 30,000 Nazis In New Thrust

Capture Four Large Ammunition Dumps As German Prisoners Begin March Back From Kotelnikovski; North Sector Offensive Expected.

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—The Red army cut its way through 30,000 German troops southwest of Stalingrad today, seized a divisional headquarters and rolled on toward the rich prize of Rostov, key to the Caucasus.

Four big ammunition dumps fell to the advancing Russians and large numbers of Axis prisoners began trudging toward the rear lines from Kotelnikovski, captured by the Russians yesterday.

(There were indications that there might be another Russian offensive soon on the northern end of the 1,100-mile battle line. A Berlin dispatch to the Swedish newspaper Nya Dagligt Allenhanda reported that Soviet trucks were streaming across frozen Lake Ladoga, restoring land communication with besieged Leningrad. German artillery was shelling the ice, the dispatch said.)

Tanks led the night assault that defeated the 30,000 Germans southwest of Stalingrad.

By their capture of Kotelnikovski, 90 miles southwest of Stalingrad, they smashed the anchor of the entire German right wing and news was expected at any time that the Russian left wing had swung around in a direct attack over flat plains which offer little possibility of effective defense against tanks, on Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus.

In night fighting in piercing cold, the Russians took village after village.

Tanks, operating by themselves, encircled one batch of 6,000 German troops and killed 1,800, the noon communique said.

In another southwest Stalingrad sector a shivering battalion commander came voluntarily into the Red army lines to surrender. The Russian sector commander invited him to return to his unit and bring back his men. He did so and surrendered about 1,000 men with all their arms and supplies, the noon communique reported.

In the northern factory area of Stalingrad, where the new Russian offensive was assuming proportions almost as important as that to the southwest, the Russians during the night drove forward against desperate German resistance and smashed 82 blockhouses and dugouts, killing 300 troops.

Here among the factories the Russians yesterday made their biggest gains since Nov. 19. With bayonet and hand grenade, assault troops advanced yard by yard for from 330 to 450 yards in an area

85 APPROVED FOR GRADUATION

Mid-Year Class at High School To Be One of Smallest In Recent Years.

One of the smallest mid-winter classes at Senior high school in recent years was approved last night by the Mansfield board of education for graduation Jan. 22.

The board placed tentative approval on the graduation of 85 seniors, including 51 girls and 34 boys. Last January 96 pupils were graduated.

The board authorized Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller to withhold the diploma of any of the class members who fail to meet the requirements by commencement date.

Supt. Miller said he was negotiating for a commencement speaker and details of the program would be announced later.

Immediately upon graduation, boys in the class who are past 18 will become eligible for induction into the armed forces if they meet physical requirements.

Seniors approved for graduation next month are:

Five Youths Confess Nine Burglaries, 3 Car Thefts

Nine Mansfield burglaries committed in recent months and three auto thefts here and in Wyandot county have been solved by confessions of five youths arrested by Mansfield police and Upper Sandusky authorities within the last 48 hours.

The youths, ranging in age from 13 to 17 years, are awaiting action by Judge Stuart H. Cramer in the juvenile division of probate court.

Patrolmen George Yoakam and Russell Miles yesterday captured three of the boys after they had escaped Monday night from the Wyandot county sheriff who had arrested their two companions in Upper Sandusky. The latter two were returned to Mansfield last night.

The quintet admitted the theft Monday evening of an auto belonging to Paul Carbetta, 233 North Mulberry street, Mansfield boxer. When challenged by the Wyandot sheriff three of the boys fled, stealing an auto in Upper Sandusky and another in Williamstown. All cars have been recovered.

Identification Officers Ernest Fuller and Clare Kyler obtained the confessions after one youth became nervous last night when Chet Nail, pinball machine distributor, visited the police station to recover a machine taken in a recent grocery store robbery.

The youth was being fingerprinted at the time and broke down when Kyler told Nail the boy's fingerprints had been obtained from it. The others followed suit.

Altogether, police say, the youths confessed two burglaries of the Lautsbaugh drugstore, a raid on the Weber brewery which proved sickening, the Wolfe grocery store on Cline avenue, the Calvert laundry, the Evergreen cafeteria where coffee and cash were taken, the Pastime poolroom, an attempted burglary of the Marinis confectionery which was foiled by Patrolmen Carl Beard and John Grohol, and looting of the auto of John Seeley, North Walnut street, of a camera, light meter and typewriter Monday night at the time they took the Carbetta car.

APPROVES BOOST IN MILK PRICE

OPA Authorizes Penny a Quart Hike In Richland, Other Counties Nearby.

Increase in milk prices in the Mansfield area was seen probable today after the OPA authorized dairymen to boost the price one cent a quart and a half cent a pint over the March price ceiling.

The maximum increases would bring the price of milk in Mansfield to 14 cents a quart and seven and a half cents a pint. Under the OPA adjustment, however, retailers may charge as much as nine cents a pint if the increase amounts to no more than a half cent.

While dairymen in Mansfield said they have made no move to raise prices, most of them said higher prices are on the way because of the competition from dealers in Cleveland and other large cities in northern Ohio.

OPA authorized the price increase effective Jan. 1 in 44 northern Ohio counties, including Richland, and four counties in West Virginia.

Other nearby counties in which increases were authorized included Ashland, Crawford, Holmes, and Huron.

OPA officials said the adjustment was ordered after requests were received from most of the counties in the northern half of the state.

In Cuyahoga county (Cleveland) and Summit county (Akron) the new retail prices will be 15 cents a quart and nine cents a pint.

CONTINUE HUNT

Sheriff In Columbus Seeking Youthful Jail-Breaker.

Tracing down every available clue in an effort to apprehend Richard Henry Wymer, 19, who escaped Saturday morning from Richland county jail, Sheriff Frank Robinson and Deputy Joe Hetler were in Columbus today to contact former associates of the youth there.

Confident that their net spread will eventually ensnare the fugitive, officers were anxious today to complete details of a priority order which would insure re-enforcement of the jail bars which were snapped to make the hole for escape.

Although county commissioners have not yet been asked to make any appropriation for the repairs and re-enforcements, pending information as to the cost and availability of materials, they indicated that their cooperation would be forthcoming when such a request was made.

200 AT SESSION

Merchants Hear Dimout and Blackout Explanation.

Nearly 200 Mansfield merchants attended a meeting in the Majestic theater last night when Chief Air Warden Glenn W. Marriott and others explained dimout and blackout regulations which will be enforced in event of air raids or simulated attacks on the city from the air.

Paul Snyder, representing R. D. Iden, chairman of the Civilian Defense council blackout committee, talked on the darkening of store windows and other features. W. E. Bradford, zone leader for the Third ward, explained how air wardens will operate under dimout and blackout conditions. Al Harman, assistant chief warden, complimented Ray Ward and other wardens, especially those serving the Main street district, for their effort in arranging the instruction session.

Similar meetings are being planned to prepare for district and state-wide dimouts and blackouts to be called by the Ohio Defense council before April 1.

HARASSING: British Patrols Jab Fleeing Foe West of Sirte

BULLETIN

LONDON—(AP)—United States troops were reported in a Reuters dispatch today to have advanced to within 40 miles of Gabes, strategic Tunisian port which lies approximately midway between Axis-held Tripoli and Tunis.

(By United Press)

CAIRO—British Eighth army patrols have broken across the Wadi Bei El Chebir, first of the remaining three possible lines of defense on the Libyan coast, and are slashing into straggling Afrika Korps transport, a communique of the Middle Eastern command said today.

Operating in lightning columns, the British patrols were reported harassing the enemy both in his rear and on the land flank, and the communique said some enemy vehicles had been destroyed in fighting yesterday.

The Wadi Bei El Chebir is 55 miles west of Sirte and 185 miles east of Tripoli.

It was long believed that if Field Marshal Erwin Rommel tried even a delaying stand, it would be based on this wadi, or dried river bed, and Wadis Zemzem and Sofeggin which slash the Axis line of retreat in the Misurata area, 120 miles from Tripoli and 200 miles from Tunisia.

Hence it was indicated that the possibility of an Axis delaying stand had materially lessened, and it appeared that Rommel was intent only on getting his broken forces to Tunisia for the Axis last ditch stand on the African continent.

Today's communique reported little air activity in the Libyan battle area but it said naval torpedo carrying planes had attacked and sunk a southbound Axis merchant ship, laden with supplies for Hitler's African forces Monday night.

The same night planes based on

ACCORD SEEN

DeGaulle Trip To U. S. Hints Unity Among French.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Speculation over a possible speedy rapprochement between North African French and fighting French factions arose today in the wake of news that Gen. Charles De Gaulle is coming to this country to confer with President Roosevelt.

The president himself disclosed at his press conference yesterday that he expected a visit very soon from De Gaulle, leader of the Fighting French who had criticized the emergence of Admiral Jean Darlan as French high commissioner in North Africa.

Darlan, regarded by the De Gaullist forces as a Vichy collaborationist prior to his capitulation to American troops in the North African invasion, was assassinated Christmas Eve. His successor, Gen. Henri Giraud, already has representatives here.

The Germans also swept the town with machine guns and cannon. A block of tenements was shattered and several more victims were believed trapped beneath the debris.

U. S. Troops Best Behaved In History, OWI Survey Declares

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—In a counter-attack against rising prohibition sentiment the office of war information reported today that Uncle Sam's troops drink conservatively and the American army is "the best behaved in history."

"The American soldier needs neither curtain lecture nor apology," OWI said. "He behaves well, he trains well, and in the far-flung places on the earth he is fighting well.

"There is vastly less drinking among soldiers in this war than in the last war."

In a 15-page report, the OWI summarized the findings of a 12,000-mile, coast-to-coast survey of drinking conditions in and around army camps, reaching three general and explicit conclusions:

"1. There is not excessive drinking among troops, and drinking does not constitute a serious problem.

"2. The sale of 3.2 beer in the post exchanges in training camps is a positive factor in army sobriety.

"3. No American army in all history has been so orderly."

The OWI recognizing that it is still "legal" to take a drink in the United States, declared that "there is drinking in the army;

Schools Get Out Of Debt But Have To Borrow Again

Mansfield schools have paid off their operating indebtedness, but they must go right back into debt again after Jan. 1 to pay teachers and employes, John H. Eisaman, clerk of the board of education, told the board last night.

Eisaman said he had paid the $50,000 the board owed Mansfield banks, giving the board a clean slate at the end of the year.

There is no money available, however, to meet the Jan. 1 payroll and it will be necessary to borrow another $50,000 against a future allocation of state school foundation funds, he added.

Because of the clouded financial picture, the board withheld action on requests for pay increases for engineers, firemen,

EXPAND: Allies Widen Wedge In Jap Positions Near Buna

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—American aircraft, operating from Henderson field on Guadalcanal, in the Solomons, strafed and bombed a fleet of enemy cargo ships off the island and sank two enemy vessels, the navy department reported today.

(By United Press)

GEN. M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—Two expanding Allied wedges in the Japanese beach head near Buna threatened today to isolate forces still holding out near the western end of the main Japanese air strip.

An enemy strong point containing 13 bunkers was reduced yesterday, an Allied communique said. This was in a triangular area southeast of the Buna Mission which had been bypassed in the early stages of the beach head fighting.

In eastern New Guinea, where the Japanese less than six months ago had a free hand and were planning a thrust still nearer to Australia, the enemy had left today only a strip of jungle and swamp one and three-eighths mile long and only 1,300 yards wide at its widest.

This beach head extended from the mouth of Entrance creek, near the village of Buna, to the end of the air strip from which the Japanese had been pushed back.

The Allied wedges were working toward Gairopa Point, from the east and west, in a pincers movement. The eastern wedge, moving between the beach and the enemy's air strip, expanded its salient yesterday. The western wedge, pushing through cocoanut groves and gardens, was about 500 yards from Gairopa Point, still meeting stiff opposition.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's artillery units were active all along the salients, silencing a number of guns including pom poms which Sometimes the boys talk about Yuletides only five years back, when the world was pretty fine and war was something in Europe and there was nothing more important to do than spend the money you made. Sometimes they go back to a childhood year when the wind blew chill through the tenement flat and the saddest thing in the world was an empty stocking.

Dorothy Lamour could tell the boys a story something like that if she were around. Her story had a tag-line written only last year, a few days after she went with her mother to shop for toys for poor children to whom they play Santa every year.

In the toy department, Dorothy spotted a pink cradle with a beautiful doll in it, and told the salesgirl to put it with the rest. Her mother protested a little. The cradle cost $25, and that would buy 25 one-dollar toys. Dorothy shook her head. "I don't care about being practical this time, mother," she said.

The mother knew what she meant. She remembered the many Christmases of Dorothy's childhood when she wanted a doll and a cradle more than anything in the world. But those were lean days, and the best the mother could put into Dorothy's stocking was fruit and candy. There was never any money for a doll and a cradle.

The day after this shopping tour, Dorothy's mother returned to the store and bought a doll and a cradle just like those Dorothy had picked out the day before.

And that Christmas Day, the doll in its cradle was under Dorothy's Christmas tree with a card signed "Mother" that said: "Dear Baby—I'm sorry this had to come 20 years late."

Phil Baker, the comedian, remembers a Christmas when he was 12 years old that wasn't funny at all, but rather strange.

"We lived in the East 70's—it wasn't swank then; it was a tenement district. It was the day before Christmas—snow on the ground—I was returning home from the west side with my sled piled with wood that I had gathered for our stove.

"A lady was walking ahead of me, scurrying along with bundles in her arms. Suddenly I saw two curls drop from her hair into the snow—artificial curls, of course. I picked them up and ran after her. I was embarrassed. So was she, but she smiled at me as she took them.

"She asked my name, where I was going with the wood, how old I was, what school I went to. I told her about my mom and my three sisters. When she asked me what I was giving them for Christmas, I was tempted to lie—make up something—but somehow I couldn't. She was too nice. I admitted I had nothing to give them.

"We came to a drygoods store and she put her packages atop my pile of wood and asked me to wait. In a few minutes she came out with four packages—one for my mom, and one for each of my sisters. She said it was my reward for returning her curls. Then she gave me a card—engraved, the first I'd ever seen—with her name and address on it. She made me promise to come to her house the next afternoon—Christmas day—at 2 o'clock.

"Well, I went over the next day, scrubbed and wearing my Sunday blue serge suit. There were seven other boys there, all about my own age. We had candy and cake and ice cream, and then we were told to pick a package from the pile under the tree. I was lucky—I got a present that thrilled me more than anything I've ever gotten since—a catcher's mitt. One kid got a policeman's badge and whistle. She really knew boys!

"We had a wonderful time, and before we left, the lovely lady made us promise we'd come back at the same time on New Year's day. Well, that week we talked of nothing else but Lady Bountiful and our presents, and on New Year's day, promptly at 2, I set out in my same Sunday blue serge suit.

"When I got to the house most of the other boys had already arrived. They were standing on the sidewalk outside, looking disappointed and unhappy.

"There had been no answer to their ring. The apartment was empty—no furniture, no lady. All the superintendent could tell us was that she had moved away the day before, leaving no address."

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — There's a new Tournament of Roses queen for Pasadena's festivities this New Year day, and she's probably ecstatic with excitement.

There's a girl in our town who can tell her she hasn't begun to know what excitement is. The girl's name is Cheryl Walker. Folks with very long memories will recognize it as that of Pasadena's rose queen of 1939.

Coons

Cheryl came into pictures. Remember? Cheryl stayed in pictures. But you wouldn't know anything about that, because Cheryl's picture career has been no rosy throne. That's why the Cheryl Walker boosters, a sizeable club in these parts, are cheering her selection as star of the movie "Stage Door Canteen."

This is the Sol Lesser production that has enlisted the services of so many of the stage and screen's great ones. Cheryl Walker will have in her "supporting cast" a few ladies like Helen Hayes, Katharine Cornell, Gertrude Lawrence, Katharine Hepburn, Tallulah Bankhead, Marlene Dietrich, Loretta Young, and Merle Oberon. She'll also have a few gentlemen named Cary Grant, Edgar Bergen, Kay Kyser and his band, and six or seven other top flight bands. They'll all be in the picture, but the star will be Cheryl Walker—Cheryl who was an "unknown" until now.

The reason we all cheer about Cheryl is that she stuck—no matter how hard the going. She had the usual six-months' contract, for publicity purposes, and then was on her own. She played extra and bits, and stand-in. She doubled for Claudette Colbert—in rehearsals for the dream sequence of "No Time for Love." She swam for Veronica Lake in "Sullivan's Travels." She posed for "leg inserts"—her own shapely items filling in for stars' legs in close-ups. She made countless tests—for new camera processes, new color film. But she seldom saw her face on the screen, except when she played in a couple of minor westerns.

Cheryl is a pretty, blue-eyed, reddish blond who, in camera studies, is reminiscent of the late Carole Lombard. She says she has always wanted to be an actress, liked to "show off" as a school cheerleader and later as a singer with dance bands. She has supported herself and helped support her widowed mother.

Makes Congress Responsible for Saving

IF YOU GET IT IN '43 YOU'LL PAY TAX ON IT

Treasury Rules Victory Levy Hits January Income No Matter When Earned.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The treasury, it was learned authoritatively today, has ruled the new victory tax must be withheld from all wages and salaries paid in January, even thought part or all of the money was earned this month.

In other words, a man paid monthly on the first of the month will find a victory tax nick taken out of his pay envelope this Friday. The same is true of all salaries paid on Friday.

The treasury ruling was based on the language of the law which says "there shall be levied, collected and paid for each taxable year beginning after Dec. 31, 1942, a victory tax of 5 per centum upon the victory tax net income of every individual."

Wages and salaries received in 1943 are to be considered "income" for 1943 under the ruling, regardless of the period in which they were earned.

Two members of the senate finance committee, Senator Byrd (D., Va.) and Danaher (R., Conn.) declared the ruling ran counter to congressional intent.

The bureau of internal revenue is sending out to business men over the nation a letter stating that "beginning Jan. 1, 1943, every employer is required to withhold, collect and pay upon all wages of every employe (except agricultural labor, domestic service, casual labor and certain other classes of labor) a tax of 5 per cent of the excess of such wages over the withholding deduction allowable."

The "withholding deduction allowable" is $624 a year. The 5 per cent victory tax is figured on the remainder of income in the case of a wage earner. (A business man is allowed to deduct his business expenses before computing the tax.)

Everyone with an income of more than $624 a year ($12 a week) has to pay the tax, but it will be collected at the source only in the case of wage earners and salaried people.

Few Apply For Second Period Fuel Oil Rations.

Only about 50 of the 1,500 fuel oil consumers in Mansfield were registered yesterday for the second period, the first day of such registrations at ration board headquarters. Registrations will continue throughout today and tomorrow for city consumers while a later date and other locations will be named for rural consumers.

Each person who registers must present his record of delivery stub along with his application.

Numerous applicants who had appealed to the board for ration book 1, regarding sugar and coffee allotments, and had been refused owing to the previous Dec. 15 deadline, may now re-apply, with the government's extension of the deadline to Jan. 15.

In order to better serve the working public, hours of the ration board have been extended from 41 to 48 per week, with open hours daily, including Saturday, from 9:15 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

CHARGE WRITER AIDED DESERTER

Government Officials Report Ursula Parrott Smuggled Soldier Out of Camp.

(By United Press)

MIAMI, Fla.—Writer Ursula Parrott, 40, gets a preliminary hearing before a United States commissioner today on a charge of smuggling a soldier out of a military stockade in the back seat of her automobile.

She was specifically accused of aiding "one Pvt. Michael Neely Bryan, a soldier in the military service, to desert" and of harboring, concealing and protecting him.

If convicted, she might be sent to prison for a maximum of three years and fined not more than $2,000.

United States Marshal A. L. Gates served a warrant on her when she surrendered Bryan, 22, at the Federal Narcotic bureau. Federal Bureau of Investigation agents said a warrant previously had been issued for his arrest, charging a narcotic violation in New York.

He was confined in a stockade at Miami Beach for being absent without leave when she allegedly helped him to desert.

An army spokesman said Miss Parrott arrived by plane from New York last Wednesday and visited Bryan several times. She visited him Monday, he said, and hiding him in the back seat of her automobile, drove away. Provost Marshal Capt. Henry F. Tyson immediately complained to the FBI.

It was not learned where Miss Parrott and Bryan were during the 24 hours between his escape and arrest.

The sewing kits made by Richland county chapter of the Red Cross for the county's men in service have apparently made a hit with their buddies from other sections of the country. In a letter received today from C. J. Bakula, a service man in training at Great Lakes Station in Illinois, the Red Cross executive office was asked if it had any more kits and if one could be spared for a sailor outside the county. Bakula said he had seen the kit his buddy had and that it would be "very handy for people in the navy." The Red Cross office will refer the letter to the Richland Victory Civic committee which distributes the kits.

"In this way the girls hope to keep before the entire public the importance of conserving birdlife that otherwise would perish if food were not placed within reach," said Mrs. Richard Fensch, troop leader.

FDR ACTS TO FORESTALL BIG CUT IN FUNDS

Wants To Know 'How People Get That Way' When Asked About Spending Slash.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The 78th congress, not yet convened, was on notice today from President Roosevelt that any cuts it may make in so-called non-war federal spending would be on its own responsibility.

In what was obviously the opening executive move to forestall widespread reductions in some government activities by the almost-Republican lower house, President Roosevelt told a press conference that only congress can determine what is and is not a non-essential activity.

Mr. Roosevelt's discussion was prompted by a reporter's question asking if he contemplated recommending reductions in non-war spending in his annual or budget messages to congress, due Jan. 7 and Jan. 8, respectively.

The president replied somewhat sharply that he did not understand how people get that way, and then swung into a dissertation on the subject.

First, he pointedly emphasized the fact that there had been steady and continuing cuts in federal expenditures for non-essential purposes since the outbreak of the emergency, and that in the last year alone these items had been reduced by about $1,000,000,000 annually.

Then he declared that it was exceedingly difficult and open to endless argument as to what actually could be classified as non-essential in wartime.

Because of this difference in views, Mr. Roosevelt declared it would be up to congress, with its prerogative to appropriate federal funds, to determine which activities should be continued and which curtailed.

In the cases of the anti-trust division of the justice department and the Rural Electrification administration, the chief executive indicated his opinion was that worthwhile activities legislated by previous congresses should be continued insofar as possible.

He posed the question of whether the new congress should or should not attempt to carry out laws long on the federal statute books. In the case of anti-trust laws—dating back nearly half a century—Mr. Roosevelt pointed out that both major political parties had approved of the principle embodied in the laws while they were in power.

Schools Give Up 20 Typewriters to Help War Effort

Mansfield schools were ready today to turn over at least 20 of their 130 typewriters to the federal government for use in army and navy training centers.

Acting on the recommendation of Supt. of Schools W. L. Miller, the board of education last night authorized release of the machines, none of them more than seven years old, to the War Production Board in the nation-wide drive for typewriters.

Supt. Miller said it will be necessary to curtail typewriting instruction in junior high schools so that the machines may be turned over to the government and commercial classes may be maintained in Senior high school.

The schools will receive approximately $15 for each typewriter released to the government, the superintendent said.

Of the 130 typewriters owned by the schools, about 80 were made since Jan. 1, 1935, the age deadline set by the WPB. The deal with the government will be handled by the Mansfield Typewriter and Supply company.

RUSSIANS ROLL TOWARD ROSTOV IN NEW DRIVE

Slash Through 30,000 Nazis After Fall of Key City of Kotelnikovski.

where every house was a fortress and every window a firing point for field gun or machine gun.

They captured a series of workshops and one big factory, took many prisoners and two field guns, 13 machine guns and 14 trench mortars.

Over Stalingrad, the Red air force and the anti-aircraft gunners in the single day shot down 31 giant German transport planes which sought to drop food and supplies to the garrison.

On the middle Don front, the noon communique reported, the Russians during the night stormed a big inhabited place and against ferocious resistance drove into its suburbs.

In other middle Don sectors they threw back a succession of counter-attacks by shock troops the German high command was throwing in steadily from diminishing reserves. In only one attack did the Germans regain lost ground. There the Russians attacked again, got back their positions, killed 400 Germans, knocked out tanks and captured ammunition dumps and other important supplies.

In the Caucasus, southeast of Nalchik, the Russian artillery spent the night bombarding enemy positions in preparation for new attacks today, the noon communique reported. They disabled eight enemy tanks and dispersed and killed many of about 1,000 enemy troops.

Intensifying their offensive operations northwest of Stalingrad, Russians during the night stormed and captured a tactically important height, the communique said. They killed about 400 of the defenders, captured prisoners, and took a quantity of war spoils. German attempts to regain the height were broken with heavy losses, including eight field guns.

Yesterday the Russians broke into a first line German trench system, killed 400 Germans and knocked out seven tanks and two armored cars. Offensive operations continued throughout the night on the central front.

West of Rzhev, 135 miles west of Moscow, Red army guns destroyed three tanks, an armored car and four trench mortars and silenced 28 field guns in bombardments softening strong points for new attacks.

In the Velikie Luki area, 140 miles west of Rzhev, a Russian assault unit stormed one inhabited locality, consolidated its positions quickly, and advanced to capture another, annihilating the headquarters of the 2nd battalion of the 257th German infantry regiment.

Other troops captured several inhabited points in the Velikie Luki sector, the noon communique reported.

Riflemen and machine gunners shot down three German planes which came too low in an attempt to protect their men on the Velikie Luki front.

The midnight communique reported the capture of Torgovaya, 110 miles southwest of Stalingrad.

It was in this area, from Kotelnikovski down into the Kuban, that the Russians were preparing the way for a gigantic swing toward Rostov which would cut off the entire German army in the Caucasus.

They had definitely trapped the remains of the 22 German divisions, originally upwards of 300,000 men, in the Don-Volga corridor, they had routed six German divisions which 18 days ago attacked in hope of breaking the trap; the Kuban and Rostov were open to direct assault; the Germans had abandoned enormous stores of materials throughout the Kotelnikovski area; it was indicated that within a few days a long stretch of the Stalingrad-Kotelnikovski-Caucasus railroad would be occupied and that along it the Russians would be within 120 miles of Rostov.

The Russian left wing had reached the Kalmuk republic border and occupied the Yashkul regional center, with an important camel-track junction.

In a double threat to Rostov, the troops of Lieut. Gen. Philip Golikov were within 80 miles of Rostov on the north.

East of the Rostov-Voronezh-Moscow railroad there was a gap of less than 40 miles between Golikov's army and the Russian army in the Kotelnikovski area, and thus the doom of the 22 trapped Axis divisions was brought nearer.

Early Indictment Expected Against Murder Suspect

CINCINNATI—(INS)—An early indictment was expected to be returned today by the Hamilton county grand jury charging Anthony Treat, 57, with first degree murder in the sex-slaying of 10-year-old Helen Sellers. Cincinnati police reported Treat confesesd the slaying of the girl Christmas eve taking her out of a Cincinnati cafe after "having some drinks."

The Sellers girl, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Sellers were poor, was a frequent visitor to the cafe where she begged nickels from patrons, police said.

An affidavit charging first degree murder against Treat was filed yesterday in municipal court by Mrs. Evelyn Sellers, mother of the victim.

Treat's arraignment on the murder charge probably will be delayed until Thursday as the girl's funeral is to be held today.

FONTANA, Cal.—(U.P.)—The Pacific coast's first iron and steel mill starts production today, just eight months after ground was broken for the huge Henry J. Kaiser project.

A 1200-ton blast furnace will be blown in by Mrs. Kaiser, wife of the miracle builder and within 36 hours the first of 432,000 tons of pig iron expected the first year will be drawn off.

French Again Warned To Leave Key Areas

LONDON —(INS)— Residents of France were warned again today for the first time in months by the British radio to move away from possible areas of invasion and from centers producing war materials for the Nazis.

The warning given by the British Broadcasting company was directed principally to those residing in the southern part of France recently occupied when Hitler scrapped the treaty of Compiegne and overran all the country following the Allied invasion of North Africa.

"French people living near railway centers, factories, workshops engaged in war production, coastal zones, repair shops and other vulnerable points will find it to their advantage to move elsewhere," the announcer said.

the Japanese were using for the first time in New Guinea.

While the Buna beach head was being slowly eliminated, measures were taken to prevent the Japanese gaining toe holds farther up the coast to the northwest, between Buna and Japanese bases at Lae and Salamaua.

Australian and American patrols were active around the mouths of the Kumusi river, 18.5 miles northwest of Buna, and the Amboga river, 9.75 miles northwest. In both sections small enemy patrols were killed or captured. Douglas A-20 attack bombers strafed the Amboga area and the native village of Lokanu, which is occupied by the Japanese.

Allied Catalina patrol bombers attacked last night the Japanese airdrome area at Kavieng, on New Irleans, dropping 250-pound bombs on hangars, runways and dispersal areas. One of several large fires burned for more than an hour, the pilots said.

All planes returned, as did the medium bombers which attacked the runway of another airport at Gasmata, on the southwest coast of New Britain. Consolidated Liberator bombers attacked the Lae airdrome, starting fires in the dispersal bays.

Don Caswell, United Press correspondent at the front, reported that the 13 bunkers reduced by Allied forces were machine gun shelters in a triangle formed by two trails meeting south of Buna village.

Extensive patroling activity was renewed, he said, around Sanananda, but main positions in that area, about three miles north of Buna, on the coast, remained unchanged. A Japanese garrison at Sanananda is on a high point giving it command of a truck road leading to the village from Soputa.

Germans Report More Jap Plane Raids

BERLIN — (German broadcast recorded by United Press in New York)—A German dispatch from Tokyo today said that Japanese headquarters in the South Pacific reported that Japanese bombers also attacked Chittagong and Feni when they raided Calcutta early Monday.

(A British communique Monday said the Japanese had raided Calcutta and two other places, not named, in east India. Damage was slight.)

Axis Fortifying Cyclades Islands

ANKARA, Turkey — (Delayed) — (AP) — The Cyclades islands, guarding the Aegean sea approaches southeast of Athens, are being enormously reinforced by the Axis, reports from the Balkans said today.

New Greek guerilla activity against the occupation forces was reported on the mainland. A train carrying munitions and about 500 German and Italian troops was wrecked and thrown into a ravine, Balkan advices said.

More than half of the men were killed and the munitions—believed destined for Africa—exploded, the report said.

British Sink Axis Merchant Vessel

CAIRO —(INS)— British naval planes have bombed and sunk an Axis merchant vessel off the Italian island of Pantellaria between Sicily and Tunisia, the Middle East high command announced today.

The ship was steaming southward, apparently toward Tunisia, the communique said.

New raids Monday night against docks in the Tunisian ports of Tunis and Sousse also were announced. The communique said the attacks were carried out successfully.

Patrols of the British eighth army operating against Axis positions west of Wadi Bei El Chebir, in Libya 40 miles west of Sirte, engaged and destroyed enemy vehicles, the high command said.

Juin Commander Of French Forces

LONDON — (UP) — Gen. Alphonse Juin has been named commander in chief of the French forces in Africa under Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, new high commissioner, French African radios announced today.

Juin, 53, commanded the French forces in Africa at the time of the Allied occupation in November and had since been collaborating with the pro-Allied French regime.

Broadcasts by French radios, including the Fighting French Brazzaville station, and dispatches from Algiers indicated that there was every prospect of an early agreement uniting Giraud and Gen. Charles De Gaulle, Fighting French leader, to ensure full world-wide co-operation of all French leaders not captives of the Axis in the Allied war effort.

Arrange for U. S. Use Of Dakar Air Fields

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa — (U.P.) — Immediate use of air fields at Dakar is being arranged by a special American mission which reached that important West African port direct from the United States, it has been revealed.

Vice Admiral William Glassford and a group of American technicians are working with French authorities on plans for American transport and military planes to use the fields.

News that Consul General Maynard Barnes was in Dakar to establish a consulate, indicates the importance Washington attaches to the port, peaceably acquired through the influence of the late Admiral Jean Darlan.

Dakar is only 1,600 miles from Natal, Brazil.

Dakar was "occupied" for the United Nations by the American Brig. Gen. Shepler W. Fitzgerald and two sergeants, it was learned here. Only one American ship has arrived there so far.

and other mechanical workers in the city schools.

Appearing for the second time before the board, R. J. Jamieson, Cleveland, representing the AFL International Union of Operating Engineers, last night renewed his appeal for shorter hours and more pay for school workers.

With six Mansfield teachers at the board session as visitors, H. W. Arlin, president of the board, told Jamieson that increases are being considered, but teachers must be included in any plan to give school employes pay raises.

Arlin said favorable action on the requests for increases will depend largely upon what the Ohio legislature does to change the school foundation law to make more state money available.

School officials and teachers are seeking a change in the state set-up, since there is no chance of obtaining additional county funds unless the tax rate is boosted.

there will continue to be drinking in the army."

"This is a civilian army," OWI said. "Men do not change character when they put on a uniform. If they drank as civilians they will probably drink as soldiers—but probably not so much."

"If they found their fun in tawdry places as civilians, they will hunt out the tawdry places as soldiers. Particularly in large cities, troops tend to seek their own level of amusement."

OWI's touring investigators, who covered most areas in the country where there are large troop concentrations, excepting Florida, said commanding officers agreed that "considerably more than half" of the troops drank nothing stronger than beer by choice and "many even abstained from beer."

"The best selling beverages around army camps are coffee, milk, malted milk, and bottled soft drinks," the report said. "Army paynight is rarely the Klondike brawl and blow-out that rumor makes it."

Nevertheless, OWI said, "the army, with an eye to its own disciplinary problem, usually prefers wet communities to dry communities. In dry states and in states where there is local option, the military faces the problem of bootleg liquor," the OWI explained. "Bootleggers cannot be regulated; legal dispensers can be regulated."

As result of its nation-wide survey, which comes on the heels of senatorial warnings that prohibition may become a prominent issue in the 78th congress convening next month, the OWI concluded that there is a definite correlation between adequate recreational facilities and soldier sobriety.

Unable to find recreation, soldierly boredom results in a "pile of empty bottles in the alleyway" or "a busy week-end for the military police," the report said.

The OWI pointed out also that military police are doing "an unobtrusive and excellent job."

OWI reported that 1,935 men soon will be detailed exclusively as military police on all trains and at depots habitually used by military personnel, upon orders of Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the army.

The action resulted from criticism of public demeanor of troops from incidents on trains. Military police headquarters reported, however, that the intoxication of troops on trains was "much lower than 1 per cent," OWI said.

Judge Kalbfleisch States Views

VIEWS of Municipal Judge Kalbfleisch on the subject of commercialized gambling, as expressed in an opinion which he read from the bench yesterday before pronouncing sentence in a gambling case, provide an illuminating analysis of a law enforcement problem which from time to time engages official attention and occasional action.

These views are given added interest because of the near approach of Judge Kalbfleisch's induction to the common pleas bench of Richland county, and may be fairly taken as a frank statement of attitude toward the whole subject of commercialized gambling enterprises.

Several noteworthy excerpts from the text of Judge Kalbfleisch's decision will bear thoughtful consideration by law-abiding citizens as well as by violators of anti-gambling laws:

1—A liberal attitude by officials toward gambling operations in an effort to conform with what they believe is the opinion of the general public on the subject of gambling.

2—A club charter does not entitle the club—whether it be a legitimate club or a mere fiction—to engage in or conduct gambling enterprises.

3—For the best interests of society, all laws on our statute books should be enforced or repealed.

4—No man or woman of sound reason will deny that a gambler-operated enterprise will impoverish the players, and if permitted to run openly, challenge the integrity of all law enforcement officials.

One paragraph, in complete form, merits serious attention from those to whom it applies:

"I see little, if any distinction between the defendant and his club and some other organizations, fraternal or otherwise, even though their precepts might be higher sounding or are dedicated to a more worthwhile purpose. I believe that any organization that is sustained by vicious gambling devices will lose its character and, by continued practice, deteriorate into the hands of men who have no interest in the fine intentions and wholesome purposes of the organization."

While the extent to which Mansfield's open and cloaked commercialized gambling operations have contributed to poverty, domestic estrangements, embezzlement of funds and other criminal acts, can only be guessed, but a sufficient number of specific instances will come to the mind of any observant person to convince him that the total is sizeable in wasted money and distress.

"The sentence I am about to pronounce," said Judge Kalbfleisch in conclusion, "is based on my belief that this arrest is part of an honest effort to destroy all vicious gambling."

If expression of public sentiment evidences approval of the position taken by Judge Kalbfleisch on this subject, and if law enforcement can be made to extend to major offenders in the gambling racket, instead of being confined to what he refers to as "small fry" operators, his belief may be well founded—but public support and co-operation will be needed to bring about any substantial or permanent improvement.

Calene Chosen To Head C. of C.

AS MANSFIELD prepares to enter what gives indication of being a vitally important year it is gratifying to know that the Chamber of Commerce will be under leadership of such efficient, energetic and public spirited officials as have been chosen by the board of directors for the coming year.

A fine record of eight years of business association and varied community activity in Mansfield stands back of the choice of Ray M. Calene as president of the organization, to succeed Lieut. Robert C. Remy, who served two years in that capacity and who is now on Civil Air Patrol duty on the east coast.

With a background of successful business experience before coming to Mansfield, and with a knack for quickly making friends and finding opportunities for community service in new surroundings, Mr. Calene became active in the Retail Merchants association and served as its president; was elected to the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A., of which he is now president, and also finds time for participation in church, fraternal and civic club activities.

With him will be associated a group of Mansfield men of proved capacity for the offices they are to fill; an excellent board of directors and a large and interested membership.

The new year will open auspiciously for Mansfield, insofar as the effective work that may be expected of its Chamber of Commerce is concerned.

1943 To Be 'Stay-at-Home' Year

APPARENTLY there is going to be more home life than usual this winter. And perhaps for another winter or two after that. Already, day by day, there is less gadding about, less "going places and doing things." The travel and errands connected with this holiday week may be the last free fling that people will enjoy for quite a while. This is not a mere layman's guess. Donald M. Nelson, who ought to know if anybody does, puts it this way:

"The mobility of consumers will be greatly restricted, both of necessity and by consumer choice. Travel by automobile is due for restriction more drastic than that obtaining today. Travel by common carrier will be increasingly inconvenient and in some cases not permissible. Reduced variety of goods, price controls, the value of time to the individual, and the general level of consumer incomes, are among the factors which will reduce consumers desire to 'shop around' or to buy at a distance from home."

So people in general may as well make up their minds to stay home and get acquainted with their families.

Poland Will Live Again!

ONE POLISH air squadron, formed Sept. 1, 1940, shot down in the next two weeks 126 German aircraft. Other Polish fliers are known to have brought down 115 more. As these figures were given out some weeks ago, the number is no doubt now much higher.

Thus the name and nationality of Poland are kept alive, despite all the Nazis do to destroy both. Throughout Poland's long years of subjection, from the final partition in 1790 to the end of the first World war, her people's rallying cry was "Poland will live again." Despite the Nazis, it is still true.

It's surprising, how many girls seem to think it's against the law to wear stockings in the winter time.

BEGINNING TO FIND OUT WHAT 'ALL OUT' MEANS

Economists Decry Postwar Boom

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Far from planning a program of tremendous industrial stimulation, to be uncorked directly after peace's restoration, quite a number of the government's economists are figuring on schemes to prevent a post-war boom from becoming uncontrollable.

They want prosperous times, of course, but they don't believe the way to get and keep 'em permanently is to acquiesce in ten or a dozen years of busines delirium, winding up in about a generation of gradual recovery from the national hoot of the initial decade.

That's been the sequence hitherto and our last demonstration of it was recent enough to be remembered. That's one of the advantages that's pointed to in having wars and their aftermaths reasonably close together. In olden days they came so fast that they were jumbled. Then they got to be too infrequent or too small-scale to be educational. Since 1918 until now, though, has been just about an ideal interval, the economists reckon.

The dope is this—

War's a curse; that isn't disputed. Nevertheless, it's a spell of prodigious productive activity. Everybody has a job, either as an actual scrapper or as a producer of supplies for the sure-enough belligerents — or maybe as a bureaucrat.

When it's over there's a short gap, while folk are redistributing themselves. If they're human they will have skinned down to their last nickels and will feel the pinch for a bit. They'll fancy that they are in the midst of the genuine coming depression, but it'll be a brief one, in so far as that particular installment of it's concerned. Everything truly useful will have been consumed, for no conceivable usefulness on earth.

False Prosperity.

And the demand will be terrific. It'll create employment, to supply it.

It'll begin to look like prosperity for awhile. The half-starved-to-death public will spend its small change like fury.

The little peewee of immediate post-war scarcity will lead into a perfect splurge of popular requirements for everything imaginable. Folk will need it also. The trouble is that they'll overdo themselves, finally running into debt and going busted.

That'll be the boom and that's how it will frazzle out, if past history's any criterion.

But the boom will start suddenly. Recovery will be very gradual.

At least, that's the scientific economists' calculation.

Their notion is that an individual can't save up his resources for a term of years, until he has quite an accumulation of 'em, and then invest all in powder and shot, to go out and massacre some predatory neighbor and be otherwise than worse off for the experience.

They agree that it may be necessary for him to exterminate such a neighbor, but they insist that it can't but be tough on the economics of the neighbor of the first part—the one who has to do the massacring.

They say that this is true of countries as well as of individuals.

Their thesis is that a country which, unavoidably, has had to pile up a huge war debt, should figure on a subsequent era of skimpiness—not on a vast campaign of national spending on almost unlimited improvements, such as the post-war expansionists advocate.

Keep Lid On.

Keeping the lid on is their prescription.

These boys are exceedingly careful as to expressing themselves in question marks. They realize that, if they do, they'll be accused of taking an overly cautious attitude.

All the same, what they want is to discourage a post-war boom.

They look for it and they're afraid of it.

Their game's to get back into normalcy, as President Harding called it, in normal fashion—by degrees, as when the country was young, with modern modifications.

It's a tendency that's more conspicuous in congress than in the bureaucracies. The bureaucracies are largely of administrative creation, and the administration is decidedly reconstructive. Congress likes things as they are—not reconstructed. And the new congress will be more so than the last one.

Ankle Chains

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THESE people who always are talking about themselves—

What a bore they are! And yet how pitiful— Like prisoners picking at their ankle chains!

Ever see an ankle chain? A beastly business. No civilized country would permit one. For something more than leg bone is shackled by that rasping iron. All clean pride, all healthy ambition everything by which a spirit can grow and climb lie bound and rotting. For a man in chains life shrinks to the circumference of that galling circle.

A cruel plight. But the egotist is in a crueler one.

Nobody can see the ankle chain on the person who has no interest outside of himself—who talks and thinks only of himself—who values every outward act only in its relationship to himself.

But the ankle chain is there, binding him as hideously as ever a prisoner was bound.

Life shrinks for the egotist as it does for the prisoner. For life is not that small accumulation of experiences and opinions which we amass ourselves. Our real life lies outside of us—beyond us—in all the other lives we meet—in all the experiences we share and the opinions we contact.

"WHOSOVEER SHALL SEEK TO SAVE HIS LIFE SHALL LOSE IT; AND WHOSOEVER SHALL LOSE HIS LIFE SHALL PRESERVE IT" Luke, XVII, 33

Meaning what? Meaning that if you try to live in yourself and by yourself you'll presently have no life at all. Your life will shrink and wither as the tortured flesh and blasted bone wither under the prisoner's ankle chain.

BUT IF YOU WILL LOSE YOUR LIFE, IF YOU HAVE THE WISDOM AND COURAGE TO PUSH YOUR OWN SELF ASIDE AND CAST YOUR LOT IN WITH OTHER SELVES, RISKING THEIR CONFLICT AND CHALLENGE- THEN YOU WILL WIN AN INFINITELY GREATER LIFE FOR YOURSELF.

Then, though you may lack wit, you will share the wit of the world.

And though you may lack nobility, you will be enobled by the courage and beauty of the world.

And though your own personal lot may be dull and petty, you'll be partner in every gypsy adventure of the human soul.

YOU LIVE AS MUCH AS YOU GIVE.

These people who always are talking about themselves—avoid them when you can, but don't get mad at them. Pity them, rather. They are the saddest sight on earth.

There they squat, mouthing and mumbling about themselves, fretting and fumbling at the self-made chains which bind them.

And, meanwhile, the glorious pageant of life sweeps by—they never see it.

The great trumpets call—they never hear them.

They see only their own shadow on the ground.

They hear only the gabble of their own voices, the clanking of their own chains.

Timely Editorial

Women Doctors and the Army.

Despite the fact that women are proving their worth as WAACS, as WAVES and as SPARS and that the army has long given commissions to women in the nurses' corps, Secretary Stimson has recently reiterated the army's refusal to use women doctors.

He argues that a woman doctor can be useful by filling a vacancy left by a man who has entered the armed services. That is true, of course, but why shouldn't an unmarried woman be given the chance to serve when her going might make it possible for a male doctor with several children to stay at home? Or if she could thereby prevent the calling of a man who would be more useful at home because of his specialty or his research work?

Great Britain commissioned women doctors in the last war and is doing so again this time. We see no reason why old-fashioned prejudices should keep them out of the medical corps of our army.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

Interpreting the War News

Wavell Confident of Victory As British Tighten Defense of India

—By DE WITT MACKENZIE

NEW DELHI—When you catch a famous commander in chief working among his war maps at headquarters on a Sunday morning while military operations in his theater are virtually at a standstill and most army men are glad to have a little well-earned rest your natural impression is that you have encountered an energetic individual.

Well, that's the way I caught Britain's Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell—who certainly needs no introduction to the American public or any other public. Or, to be more accurate, that's the way Wavell caught me and the manner of it was rather unusual.

I had dropped in at his headquarters on another errand and took the opportunity to suggest that an interview with India's commander in chief at some future date would be appreciated. I had in mind of course that the task of getting to see one of these military czars sometimes is like trying to drive a camel through the eye of a needle.

Therefore I was surprised when my suggestion was placed before the great man forthwith and was astonished when he replied:

"Bring him right in."

Now that represents action and possibly was one of the characteristics which Field Marshal Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German high command, had in mind when he wrote in a magazine just before Hitler precipitated the world conflict:

"English generals are all conservative in thought except one—Wavell—but he is so clever that he may make up for all the rest in any great war in which England may be engaged."

In any event, within three minutes of broaching the subject I was receiving a cordial handshake from Gen. Wavell. He motioned me to a chair and perched himself on the edge of a table. A bright light from the window back of him emphasized the lines of his strong face and incidentally made a dazzling rainbow of the great bank of ribbons which covered his broad chest like Joseph's coat of many colors.

SPEAKING of chests, there's nothing "chesty" about Gen. Wavell, though his own distinctions, plus the fact that his father and grandfather were generals, might excuse him if he did throw his weight about a bit.

My guess is that he's not self-centered, but rather one who likes humanity. That idea is rather supported by the fact he always is among his troops looking after their welfare and has reserved accommodations in his own home for several officers—any officers—who arrive in crowded Delhi and can't find a place to stay.

Anyway he is a friendly sort to meet. We chatted of many things, mainly about the war, and he was very willing to discuss the military situation, with references to the great maps on his walls.

It is not the purpose of this article to record an interview but I can say that the general was optimistic regarding the war situation as a whole. Indeed, that is well summed up in a little new message which he sent to Indians in the fighting forces. It follows in part:

"The war has now entered a new phase. At last we can see clear before us the road to final victory. It may be a long road and a rough one, but if all of you, whether in the armed forces or in the factory, maintain your magnificent efforts, every man doing his utmost at his job, the end is sure."

If that is a correct estimate of the position—and my constant study of the various theaters leads me to believe it is—then we should add that Wavell is given credit for tightening the defenses of India at a moment when the threat from both Hitler and the Japs was grave.

* * *

THE GENERAL showed a friendly interest in my own activities and asked about my experience in the last war. When I told him I was with General Sir Archibald Murray, now in retirement but then British commander in chief in the Middle East, for a time in the desert fighting on the Sinai peninsula, Wavell smiled and remarked:

"I sent a letter to Murray in England two days ago."

The commander in chief said he had not served with Murray but had served with Field Marshal Viscount Allenby, who succeeded Murray. As a matter of fact Wavell was Allenby's chief of staff and has written a notable biography of that famous soldier, who was by way of being Wavell's hero.

This undoubtedly accounted for the fact that Wavell was greatly interested when I told him I have, in Allenby's own hand-writing, an expression of appreciation of the Allied generalissimo of the last war, Marshal Foch, which Allenby gave at the time of the French soldier's death. I must remember to send Wavell a photographic copy of that historic document when I get home.

You know General Wavell as a soldier. Maybe you don't know he not only has done much biographical writing but at this moment is engaged in compiling an anthology of poetry.

The general didn't tell me that, but one of his friends gave the show away. I happen to know too, from another source, that he is a great admirer of Browning.

Beyond that he is a man of simple tastes and is keen on home life. Lady Wavell is with him here in New Delhi.

Well, there you have Wavell—a man of many interests and an odd but wholly likeable mixture of soldier and poet. I dare say that in due course we will see him in battle action again. It is hard to believe that the Japs are going to be allowed to camp indefinitely in Burma or on the road to Mandalay.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

(First of Two Articles on Food at War.)

WASHINGTON—Some of our even more conservative Capital observers are saying that now that Claude R. Wickard is virtually a food production czar, it's time to quit fiddling around with half-way measures and jingoistic phrases about our food supply and what is going to happen to it.

Our war strategists, they say, have already decided that American beans are bullets and that a few thousand pounds of beefsteak can be more devastating than all the four-ton blockbusters dropped on Italy in an hour-long night raid.

They argue, and with some justification, that the prospects of getting on the bread line has kept Spain from going over to the Axis and that the smiles we now get from Portugal come from their two-way look at the food situation on both sides of the fence.

IN HUNGRY Italy, they contend, faint heart is a disease caused by empty stomachs. In a little different way, the same thing applies to France. In Greece, Holland, Belgium, Norway and many other countries, once we have our bridgeheads food will give birth overnight to millions of loyal commandos.

That summary doesn't even consider the near-starvation of the Russians. If that hunger-hardened nation falls (and well it could), it will be for lack of nourishment—not for lack of courage or arms.

That, briefly, is how the military and civilian strategists now look at the global war picture. Food has ceased to be a mere humanitarian product. It's a weapon as vital as air-power, manpower or control of the seas.

A GLANCE at the meat supply-demand is interesting. Discussing the proposed rationing the other day with a representative of the packing interests, I got this statement:

"The United States' normal consumption of meat is around 17 billion pounds. Next year we will produce and market 24 billion pounds, if all goes well—and that will be three billion pounds less than the prospective demand."

And that doesn't mean giving more than a subsistence minimum to any Allied nations or Axis captive nations which might be released in the meantime.

Back of all this isn't any inability on the part of this country to feed itself and its soldiers and feed them royally. It's just that at the same time the demand has hit an all-time high, the strategists have realized that food is ammunition which may knock more of our enemies out of the war (by bringing them over to our side) than any other weapon.

A Farmer's Diary

Carols

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I OPENED my evening paper and sat for a long time looking at an unusual photograph. SOMEWHERE IN ICELAND was its caption. Seven soldiers in arctic uniforms — hooded and gloved — stood about a portable organ upon a level snowcrust, near the sea.

They had two open songbooks, and a third upon the organ. Behind them, many more soldiers were indistinct. These seven were leading the army in singing Christmas carols . . . and I, an Ohio farmer, snug and warm by my own fireside, was thrilled and deeply moved by the implication of the photograph.

They needed few books, those lads, for they have heard these lovely hymns from childhood. At home, in high school glee clubs and in churches, carolling on streets and county highways they sang the Christmas songs every year. Now, neither the arctic blizzards nor the swirling desert sands, not the boom of cannons nor the roar of ocean can quite shut out this music that rings out with confidence, around the world . . . that knows no foreign soil.

The message of love and freedom cannot be silent in such a season—when "heaven and nature sing," and there is peace on earth to those who do not fear and are not oppressed.

I tried to read the expression on each soldier's face—such young faces, eighteen or thereabouts, full of animation and fun and all unused to serious reflection. Home ties broken, close friends and dear ones far away, yet there they stood, and sang the sweetest music of all the world, for heart and voice sing well together. And not only that—they even moved me, who have no singing voice, to tremulously join in the "Amen," across the miles between.

I don't know any of the seven carolers—but I know hundreds of other khaki-clad youths who have left Pennsylvania, New York, California, Texas or Ohio, who have shelved hopes and dreams for a splendid future to tackle the one big job that needs doing now. They are singing United States songs, they are carrying the memories of American home life, wherever they go.

This war is not all blood and sweat and tears, it is partly faith and prayer and music.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

SOROSIS CHAPTER HAS INTERESTING PLANS

Subjects of Papers for Year's Programs Cover Variety of Subjects; Guest Nights Scheduled; War Stamps Purchased.

SERVING as this year's president of Beta chapter of the Mansfield Sorosis club is Mrs. W. W. Mickey. Mrs. Alden Lash is vice president, Mrs. H. E. Linham is secretary and Miss Dorothy Moser is treasurer.

Before its reorganization in May, 1942, the club was known as the Junior Sorosis group. Mrs. Lash, Miss Esther Snyder and Mrs. L. C. Baumgardner, who comprise the program committee, have arranged interesting meetings for the year.

When Mrs. S. R. Baird is hostess to the club on Jan. 6, a paper on "The American Indian" will be given by Mrs Frank Breckenridge. Guest night will be held on Jan. 20. At that time Mrs. Linham will be hostess and Miss Moser will speak on "Understanding the News." The Feb. 3 meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. Breckenridge. Subject of Mrs. Lash's paper will be "The Film, Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

On Feb. 17, Adjutant Paul Hoffman of the Salvation Army is scheduled to be guest speaker. Hostess will be Mrs. V. A. Simpson. "Places and Peoples of the Pacific" will be the title of Mrs. Mickey's paper for the program on March 3. Guest night will be observed on that date. Mrs. A. H. Moellenkamp will discuss "The Pan-American Highway" at the March 17 meeting. Hostesses for the March through May meetings are to be announced.

Mrs. H. K. Mansfield has been assigned the subject, "Clara Barton—Founder of the Red Cross" for the March 31 program. Miss Bertha Ruess of the Mansfield Sorosis club will be speaker for the guest night program on April 14. Mrs. Moellenkamp will entertain on that date. A quiz program will be conducted by Mrs. Andrew Mott on April 28, and the annual meeting of the club will take place on May 12. Mrs. Simpson's paper will be on "Building and Furnishing a Home."

The year's activities will be concluded with the annual party on May 26. Slogan for the season is "Buy a War Stamp at Every Meeting."

New Shade for Accessories Is 'Bristol Blue'

The translucent violet-blue of old English Bristol glass will now light up your eyes, as one of the newer and lovelier millinery shades. Sable brown is the smartest basic color to wear with Bristol Blue hats and accessories. No combination is more radiant for the informal bride—or for any of you who want that current, exquisitely ensembled look.

Hats in this rare blue are matched to bags, gloves, lapel jewels and evening jackets. One is a wearable afternoon bonnet of soft suede with a square, swooping brim and high, bloused crown. Complete with six button, whipstitched gloves and an all-shirred underarm bag in the same color and fabric, it makes a 1943 costume of your perennial furs.

A stunning milliner-made turban and heart-shaped lapel pin in the same scintillating blue make another twosome destined for a grand entrance.

OUR CLUB DANCE.

Breakfast will be served at 1 a. m. to Our Club members and their guests at the conclusion of the New Year Eve dance which will be held in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sturges, jr., are chairmen for the affair. Dancing will begin at 11 p. m.

Light Colors Preferred by Girls

By SUSAN BARDEN
(International Illustrated News Writer)

Mid-season fashions in frocks point to a preference for light colors in both dressy afternoon models and daytime dresses. So if you are planning to do a little wardrobe replenishing with your Christmas money, it would be a good idea to look over these pretty and becoming styles.

Besides being very smart for now under a fur coat or a winter cloth coat, they will stand you in good stead for early spring into summer wear when the weather gets warmer and you are either using a light wrap or no coat at all.

Some of the most popular of the colors are blue tones, involving light baby blues and aquas, light yellows and shades of pink, from dusty to almost rose. Shades of brownish tan and beige are also being worn a great deal.

Three Types Shown.

The three photographs pictured above show several different types of these mid-winter pastel frocks.

Jane Wyman is wearing a dress designed by Leah Rhodes. It is made of oatmeal wool and is beautifully styled with cut-in shoulders, a bulky top and a slim skirt. The dress has smart tuck treatment, and the white pique collar is closed in front with a becoming shoestring tie.

Orry-Kelly created the frock that is being modelled by Ann Sheridan. It is made of beige wool line-checked in blue. The dress is cut with a high neck, fitted top and skirt with front fullness. Bias folds of self-fabric give a yokelike effect. The large brown felt chapeau is faced with blue grosgrain ribbon and swathed in flattering brown veiling.

Interesting detail distinguishes the third dress worn by Brenda Marshall. It is of power blue leda cloth. The fitted jacket has nicely cut shoulders and braided tubing trim. The pillbox hat is made of self-fabric and has a looped snood across back which catches all the hair.

School Girls' Shoes Rise and Shine

By DOROTHY ROE
(Wide World Fashion Editor)

Goodbye, brown-and-white saddle shoes.

Hello, shiny moccasins and oxfords.

Schoolgirls are bidding a fond farewell to their beloved, begrimed and be-autographed saddle shoes, by government order forbidding the manufacture of two-tone shoes. But they are hailing with equal joy the new fad for well-shined play shoes of brown antique calf or alligator.

Just is it once was fashinable to wear "sloppy" saddle shoes, innocent of polish, now it's the thing to have moccasins or oxfords shined to a mirror-like sheen.

Newest in the teensters' shoe lineup are the even-popular moccasins in sturdy leathers designed to stand the gaff, ghillie oxfords in highly polished antique calfskin, leather wedgies for play or school. Alligator leather is new for schoolgirls, and tough enough to stand up to the mileage of active young feet.

America's schoolgirls have their own ideas, as is witnessed by letters to the "Tricks-for-Teens" club sponsored by Betty Green of Parents' Magazine. Here are some of their more recent "fadshions:"

"When our leather shoes or sandals get scuffed beyond repair, we paint them bright colors and go over them lightly with colorless nail polish"—Ruth Gehling, West Allis, Wisconsin.

"Colored shoe laces are brightening up our shoes these days."—Marie Stoeppelwerth, Emporia, Kansas.

"In our high school the girls stick colored thumbtacks around the outer edge of their shoe soles"—Mildred Roycraft, West Me-Henry, Ill.

"We take our saddle shoes and other white oxfords and have our pals autograph them in ink."—Mary Teresa Dornisch, St. Mary's, Pa.

"All the girls are wearing bells on their shoe laces"—Jeanne Blumen, Oakley, Calif.

Now, however, the tricky teensters have cast their vote for good grooming.

"We're tired of sloppy saddle shoes," says one spokesman. "We want our feet to look neat now—just as neat as our clothes."

And here's how to make those new shoes rise and shine:

Clean smooth-leather shoes with saddle soap to remove excessive dust and grime, let them dry, then apply either paste type polish or self-shining liquid wax. The latter comes in a bottle with a dauber, dries to a satin sheen. For added luster you may buff briskly, using cloth or buffer plus elbow grease.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

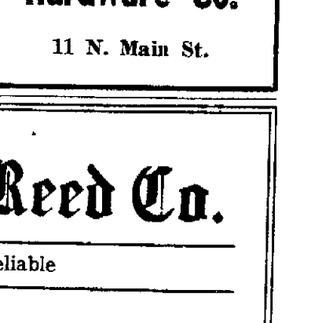
"The Authority on Authorities"

PAY NO HEED TO IT

It may not be particularly ethical, but some players try what they consider subtle methods of conversation to influence your bids and plays. Under this heading come such things as calling an intermediate card "the small diamond" as it is led from dummy if they want you to refrain from covering it, whereas they would call it by its exact size if they hoped you would cover. If we play with such people at all, it may be well to become extreme realists for the time being and pay no attention to those remarks.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Dbl	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Dbl

When West saw his partner play his lowest heart on the K lead, he did not make the fortuitous shift to a club, which would have beaten the contract two tricks, but sent out his trump 9 in a hopeless effort to cut down diamond ruffs. The declarer took two spade tricks and then called for the "small diamond" from dummy.

East had been ready to put his 10 on that card whenever it was led, just on general principles, but when South called it "small," he decided South intended to go up with some honor, and he himself might just as well conserve his own cards. So he put on the 2. Imagine East's feelings when South let this run, had it forced the A. The club 5 came back to the A—all too late, as a spade put South in to use his diamond K and Q for club discards from the dummy. Then he ruffed one club, led a heart to the J and A, took the returned heart 3 with the 10, discarding his last diamond, then cross-ruffed a heart and a club.

yB4hh- gie mfo v,i. dad aoutuu

If East had covered that diamond 9 with his 10 or J, South would have had to come in with his K or Q, and then could have discarded only one of dummy's clubs. Hence he would have been set by tone trick in clubs, one in diamonds and two hearts.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I clenched my fingers with sudden unreasoning anger. If my father ever spoke about my telltale face again, I thought childishly, I would pretend I had no information.

"I am afraid I never shall make a good keeper of secrets," I said.

"On the contrary," he said surprisingly, "you are very good at it. To an ordinary observer your face tells nothing. Only those who know and love you, and who have studied your every tone, look and gesture, can tell when you have something unusual on your mind. And now tell me all about it."

"It is something Gus wishes you to know," I said, and related everything Gus had told me about the collegiate gangster's absorbed interest in one page of the paper Gus had sent for at his urgent request.

Tells About Personal.

"I had Gus get me a paper," I said, taking the folded sheets out of my handbag, "and he discarded all but these two pages. He couldn't decide which of them the gangster was studying, but he leans to this one."

I held the page with the personal column in it toward my father and he seized it avidly.

"This one, with the personal column, of course," he said, "especially when we recall the gangster's exclamation 'Good old Tony!' And now to determine which personal he found, and then decode it, for of course it will be in code. For that I shall have to call on you, my dear."

My mental thermometer shot down below zero. My father has an exaggerated idea of my ability to decipher code messages, and I am always afraid he is going to discover how inefficient I am. If I had to go to work immediately on this personal column, I could see my interview with Mary go glimmering.

Madge Gains Time.

"You mean," I asked, hoping my face this time was telltale, "that you want me to go to work on this right away?"

"Indeed no, my dear," he said. "I think Gus is unduly worried over this, but I'm glad of any information it may bring me. But there's no hurry. This, Tony, whoever he is, can have no idea of the whereabouts of the lad in the hideaway. And where is Gus, by the way?"

"In the car, near the entrance to the hotel, waiting for your orders,"

"I'll send Adams down with a message for Gus and Joe to go back to the hideaway, after they've thrown off Milner's trailers, and stay there until they hear from me. I'll have Adams tell Milner my message was for them to go to the usual rendezvous in New Jersey and wait for me."

"That," concluded my father with a grin, "will give Joe a good job of dodging, and Milner a severe headache. And now I have a message for you."

"From Mary?" I ventured.

"Right," he answered. "She came over to tell me that both she and Noel would be glad to attend the after-theater supper for Georges. I gave her your message about wishing to see her alone, and she said she would arrange the matter. She wants you to call her and say that you have done the shopping she requested, and ask if you may came over and show her the things—this for the benefit of the operator."

"I'll call her at once," I said. I picked up the telephone and reached Mary immediately. I repeated the pre-arranged message. Mary played up by exclaiming ecstatically, "Of course you may come over. Hurry! I'm crazy to see the things. I needed them so, and I didn't have a second to go and get them."

EVEN BUFFALO IN SCRAP PILE

OMAHA—(AP)—For 65 years the Union Pacific railroad bridge over the Missouri river was adorned on the western end by a giant buffalo head to symbolize the west, and on the eastern end by a large bas relief, whose design of a plow, an anchor and steam hammer symbolized eastern industry.

But no more, for the historical pieces, cast in 1887 by Etienne Favy of New York City, are to be salvaged for their high copper bronze content. The buffalo head, 7½ feet high, is estimated to contain 2,400 pounds of bronze, the bas relief 1,000 pounds.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, December 31

THE OLD year dies on a menacing and unpromising note, judging by the several adverse planetary aspects, which indicate rash, ill-considered and turbulent activities, which forecast trouble, danger and all manner of untoward events and unhappy adventures.

Those whose birthday it is may face a year demanding all their wisdom and sound judgment in order to keep on an even keel of progress, to be wrested from turbulence, sudden upsets, reckless and unreasonable conduct as well as a tendency to shirk duties and obligations. Change may be hazardous and tricky.

A child born on this day may be irritable, impetuous, disposed to all sorts of extremes and prodigalities, with little ambition beyond the pursuit of pleasure.
